Faces mirror KHS causes

Faces—concerned, smiling, thinking, intrigued—show the combined energies of KHS. Caught in a moment of reality, each individual perpetuates his own warmth or distress. Bound by age, sometimes by ideals, each entity merges into the establishment of Kecoughtan.

Pursuing a goal or relishing in a cause, each face at KHS represents a commitment to youth and its conflicting ideals.

As old faces mature, new faces emerge, continuing the explosion of new ideas and new commitments to fruitful change at KHS.

Head up, Miss Gerry Farinholt catches the action at a basketball game. Smiling, Dolores Kerns learns of senior exemption from final exams. Sizing up, Keyette Susi Allison wonders about the success of the upcoming Celebrity Auction.

Students unfurl KHS spirit

Surges of activity—moments of quiet—echo through the hall after three o'clock. As the doors close, creative energies emerge.

Charged with excitement, students perfect individual talents. Running the hurdles, learning cheers, writing copy, or professionalizing a performance, Warriors generate Kecoughtan's enthusiasm.

Drawn to the excitement of success and thrill of accomplishment, individuals vitalize the spirit of KHS. From each person's unique commitment, the spirit of KHS unfolds.

Relaxing after the two-mile run, Mike Davis watches his teammates. Leading the student body in a cheer, Debbie Wagner supports the Varsity Basketball Team.

Trying to control his donkey, Mr. Revis Conrad waits to get the basketball from a fellow faculty member in the Donkey Basketball Game. Listening to a student recite a new French dialogue, Mrs. Virginia Hess prepares to mark down a daily grade. Checking naval regulations, CWO Arthur Spriggs completes a lecture for his NJROTC students.

Faculty keys vital activity

Keyed by the tension of success and frayed by the disappointment of loss, faculty members commit themselves to the development of today's youth.

Introducing new curricula, helping individual students, or plunging headlong into activity, teachers involve themselves in the total educational spectrum. In the gym, on the stage, or at the typewriter, faculty members coax the talents of Warriors. Through their energies teachers guide questioning students in their search for a promising and fruitful future.

Talking to a construction worker, Mr. Harry B. Dyche, Jr. checks on progress of the new addition to KHS. Checking the absentee list, Mr. David Nelson helps Linda VanFossen in the boys' attendance office. Using a megaphone to address the band, Mr. Fred Pendergraft gives marching directions.

Looking through his Warrior Tom-Tom notes, Ken Downey prepares for the Saturday morning broadcast. Discussing his eccentricities, Stanley, played by Ray Williamson, portrays his perversion. Depicting his feelings, an artist creates a water color. Transferring her thoughts to paper, Audrey Newman devises a poem for the Torch.

Artists view life's discord

Molding clay into distinct forms, articulating dialogues into believable expressions, and penciling words into imaginary gardens, young artists fill the void left by bleak realities.

Concentrating efforts to picture life as it should be or life as it is, artists conceive of life as a series of complexities. Whether a student revitalizes the youthful Auntie Mame, satirizes American society, or sketches a breath full of life, he draws from his own personal goals and commitments to create a meaningful expression.

Relating her experiences incurred by her release into the world, Agnes Gooch, Connie Mitchell, tells Mame of her pregnancy. Molding a mound of clay, an artist transforms ideas into a concrete object.

Receiving congratulations from Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr., Maureen Lucey assumes the role of leadership that National Honor Society members uphold. Aboard a fire truck, Ray West and Robert Curtin rush to the scene of a fire. Checking the IBM attendance list, Susan Quinn helps Mrs. Shirley Booth in the office.

Gifts, crafts refresh KHS

Grasping responsibilities, Warriors seek to innovate changes in the KHS community. Frustrated by apathy and stimulated by challenges, students offer their talents and abilities to vitalize the varied programs. Whether heading a school publication, steering a club, or leading the SCA, individuals commit themselves to positions of responsibility. Through involvement, each student uses the limited environment of KHS as a starting point for the more demanding roles in an everchanging society.

Contributing to the need of her community, Debbie Bunting donates a pint of blood to the Red Cross. Accepting the responsibility of a paper route, Pat Brennand earns extra spending money. Carrying out the duties of a publication's editor, Fain Rutherford, Torch editor, sells a copy of the magazine to Mike Agud.

Students try to determine life's purport

Perplexed by the enigmas of the modern world, individuals join hands to solve its pressing environmental and sociological problems. Whether working in the laboratory to pinpoint incidences of environmental pollution or speaking out on the inequities of our social systems, students commit their efforts to make the world a better place to enjoy our unique freedoms. With idealistic zeal, individuals furnish the needed impetus to generate an attitude for change.

Discussing the problems facing today's youth, Cathy Stronski, KHS student, participates in a Student Burgess Convention. Stressing class unity, Jim Lanham campaigns for president of the rising senior class. Challenging the rights of the gallery to vocalize their opinions, John Ulmschneider watches as a motion on this subject is passed.

Efforts unite in group goal

Sacrificing individual glory, teams work together to benefit the whole. While athletic teams coordinate plays on the field or in the gym, cheerleaders raise their voices in one united "Battle Cry Warriors." As the band marches down the field in unison, choral members blend their voices in song. When pressing deadlines approach, journalists band together to publish the news of the school. In joint efforts, separate entities merge to create the force for success.

Working together, Mike Brennand and Jack Stoecker select pictures for the sports section of the Tomahawk. Arms linked, Margo Copper, Debbie Wagner, and Nyra Hill dance through the cafeteria during Indian Week, October 16-23.

Setting up an offensive play, Don Belbin moves under the boards while teammate Steve Laxton brings the ball down court. Building the Senior Class float, Eric Colthorpe finishes the paper flowers while Joan Scott cleans up. Blending the tones of their saxophones, Neal Kitchin and Mike Johnston perform in a band concert.

Talents spur creative zeal

Tension, frustration, and talent merged to form creative ventures. Sparked by commitment to an ideal, students broke the monotony of curriculum by involvement in activities outside the classroom. The roar of the greasepaint beckoned students and faculty alike, as each spent long hours working for perfection. Pounding drums, wailing saxophones, and blaring trumpets awakened audiences from daily doldrums. Dancing to music and partying to the wee hours left only memories, as weary Warriors awoke to face the world of reality.

Warrior reservation viewed during first day confusions

Presenting an overview of the upcoming events of the school year, the SCA presented skits for the class of '73. Through informative entertainment, sophomores saw the Warrior Reservation through the eyes of the upperclassmen.

Nervousness and tension hung in the air as skit members enacted JV cheerleader tryouts. However, this nervousness was soon overcome with excitement as Kathy McLaughlin was crowned "Queen" of the Homecoming Court. Escorted by Julie Neely, the "Queen's" traditional stroll down the football field was made in a shopping cart.

Mr. Harry B. Dyche, Jr., principal, introduced administrative personnel and members of the coaching staff. Mr. Bill Greene, athletic director, outlined briefly the various sports of football, basketball, baseball, golf, cross-country, swimming and tennis.

SCA President Neil Smith discussed the extracurricular activities made available to the student body.

Maintaining the tradition of KHS, the assembly was concluded with the Alma Mater and Fight Song.

Parading in the SCA orientation skit, Kathie McLaughlin, pushed by Julie Neely, reigns as the 1970 football Homecoming "Queen."

Roc accents man's agony

"Is this another Marat/ Sade?" . . . "What is Phi Zappa Krappa?" . . . "Look who is playing!" These exclamations could be heard as the stage dimmed at 8:00 p.m. to present the Garrick Circle Players production of Fire.

Michelle Willingham entered a dark stage and read the biblical story of the creation which provided an introduction to the fall of humanity. Written by John Roc, this modern morality explored the depths of man's desperation.

Representing the devil Jason, Scott Hawk persecuted each of the characters by attacking his way of life. With the exception of eight humans, the earth's population was destroyed by a disaster that remained unknown to the audience. Eight characters grasped for happiness, but continuous torment sank the survivors into the depths of despair and a welcomed death.

Each character represented aspects of life that are common to all humanity. Marco portrayed strength; Ronald symbolized innocence. In contrast, Stanley represented sexual perversion and Walter depicted fatherhood. Sarah characterized the virtues of motherhood; whereas, Delia represented the values of a courtesan.

Eight characters could not cope with the persistent attacks on their virtues. Thus, in the end they voted for self-destruction.

Menacingly, Jason, portrayed by Scott Hawk, thrashes angry words of reprisal at the audience. He begs them to help him in his endeavor to break the spirit of humanity, and yet they represent a force with which he cannot cope.

Displays of enthusiasm reached into the cafeteria as Carol Matthews, Linda Rowe, and Becky Parks demonstrate school spirit.

Tossing an additional box to the pile, junior Robert Chappell adds to the growing mound while David Sorrell rests. Dressed in Indian attire, Denise Blotzer and Karen Roberts "pow-wow for power."

Spirited fans support team

Indian Week, October 16-23, gave spirited students and faculty the opportunity to bolster the morale of the football team for their upcoming game against arch rival, Hampton. Contests were organized to rally student spirit. Included in the contests was a search for a hidden crab, tucked away in the SCA suggestion box, and a creative poster contest. Lisa Williams and Wanda Creekmore, the respective winners, were awarded free tickets to the Hampton game.

On Friday, pep rallies were held during both lunches. The band and spirited students cheered the team throughout the cafeteria and halls.

Climaxing the week was the annual bonfire. Each class strived for victory in the box drive. Seniors, breaking a school record with 60,000 boxes, gathered the majority to win the competition.

Surrounded by a mountain of boxes, senior Betsy Flowers assists in the stacking of boxes for the bonfire. Leading the band, senior Neil Kitchin marches through the hall evoking Warrior spirit.

MHS float display accents football homecoming week

Homecoming highlighted the 1970 football season with the theme "Pow-Wow for Power." Preparations of floats based on this theme began November 2 and concluded November 6. The floats in competition underwent judgment during the Homecoming Parade preceding the game. Judges awarded first place to the Math Honor Society float composed of two huge dice with the theme "KMHS Bets We Win." Taking second place honors was the senior class float, while the sophomore class float ranked third.

Following the parade, the Warrior football team was defeated by a close margin of 6-0 against Bethel. Presentation of the 1970 football queen and her court was the highlight of the half time ceremonies.

Queen Ann Williams was attended by seniors Debbie Wagner and Danne Deaux. Junior attendants, Terry Hale and Sherry Coleman, were presented before the crowning of the queen. Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. presented the queen with a silver bowl and roses.

Concluding the week of festivities, the Homecoming Dance was held on November 7, in the cafeteria. The queen and her court, along with students and alumni, danced to the "Liberation."

Creating a decoration, Sharon Hall works on the Senior Class float. Promenading onto the football field, Cynthia Miller is escorted by Herbert Manley during half time ceremonies at the Bethel game.

Beaming, Ann Williams reigns over the homecoming dance following presentation. "Pow-Wow for Power" is illustrated in the Junior Class float portraying a KHS Warrior massacring a Bethel Bruin.

Teachers and staff display talents during annual show

Epitomizing famed stars of today and yesteryear, the faculty displayed their talents in the third annual production of Faculty Frolics which premiered November 20. Radio commentator, Dick Lamb, was the emcee.

Comic adlibs from Dean Martin, played by Mr. Buddy Denton, and dance numbers by the Golddiggers aided in the show's transition.

Mr. Tom Miller, portraying Richard Burton, delivered a dramatic rendition from "The Magic Christian," echoing those immortal words "To be or not to be."

Localizing the performances, the Gosnold Hope Park Tramps, Mrs. Joel Grimm and Mrs. Alease Gant, enacted a buddy routine.

Waving their farewell to the audience, the faculty strutted from the stage in final song and dance.

Flocked by Golddiggers, Mr. Buddy Denton, characterizing Dean Martin, rehearses for Faculty Frolics with drink and cigarette in hand. Vocalizing faculty talents, Mrs. Judith McPherson as Phyllis Diller, Mrs. Mildred Insley as Twiggy and Miss Dorothy Farinholt as Shirley Temple perform at the third annual premiere of Faculty Frolics.

Nestling up to his conquest, the Dirty Old Man, played by Mr. Donald Taylor, woos the reluctant Gladys, played by Mrs. Nancy Reynolds. Pealing away his costume, Mr. Tom Miller, portraying Richard Burton, delivers a dramatic rendition from The Magic Christian. Dismayed, Mrs. Pat Stern quizzically looks at faculty performers during rehearsal.

'71 presents folk war tale

Unisex characters and improvisation marked the action in the Senior Class Play, Viet Rock. The folk war play, written by Megan Terry, sought not to explain the Vietnam war but to find the essence of violence.

Clad in blue jeans and white tee shirts, the characters stressed the theme by deemphasizing the character parts and scenery. Decked with only a backdrop, posters, and a stars-and-stripes box, the stage was used as a Senate hearing room, a bar in Saigon, and a battle field in Vietnam.

Scattered throughout the KHS auditorium, posters expressing the sentiments of the public helped expose typical views in today's society. The protestor, the patriot, the soldier, and his loved ones at home embodied positions created by war.

Preparing to slay her victim, Pam Lambert awaits the right moment to stab Don Kirk in the back.

Admiring an imaginary watch of American soldier Don Kirk, Pam Lambert portrays a South Vietnamese trainee. Waiting between scenes, Jeanie Martin takes a relaxation break. From a foxhole in Vietnam, an American GI, characterized by Richard Sheppard, reflects upon his mother and home.

With added pleasure, soldiers load toys from "Toys for Tots" campaign. Awaiting their cue, Spanish clubbers Rochie Tschirhart and Denise Shaw prepare to sing carols in the Christmas program.

Clubs unfold holiday spirit

Christmas celebrations throughout the world were dramatized by members of the French, German, Spanish, and Latin Clubs as part of the Christmas assembly.

Diane Bryant, as "Santa Claus," imparted the feeling of a Spanish Christmas as other Spanish Clubbers enacted the festive activities of the night before Christmas.

Knowing the real meaning of Christmas, the SCA initiated a drive to collect toys for needy children. Over 1,000 toys were donated to the U.S. Marine sponsored "Toys for Tots" campaign.

With the theme "Babes in Toyland," the Mistletoe and Holly Ball, sponsored by Key Club and Keyette members, was held December 19. Students danced to the music of the "East Coastmen" in a cafeteria bedecked with an old-fashioned Christmas tree.

Loaded with goodies and switches, "Santa Claus," Diane Bryant, makes her yearly rounds in the Spanish Club skit. Poised in festive anticipation, Kathy Fitzgerald and Debbie Fitzgerald, featured as dolls delivered by Santa Claus, await their discovery. Preoccupied in studies, library assistant Selena Holmon works among festive Christmas decorations.

Presenting her platform for the office of secretary, Kathy Fitzgerald speaks to the student body during an SCA assembly. During the KHS Stage Band performance, a guest musician displays his talent on the saxophone. Soloing on the trumpet, Dale Herner performs during the KHS Stage Band concert.

MIT singers highlight '71 year at KHS

Adding variety to the daily school routine, SCA assemblies entertained KHS students and raised money for SCA projects.

Singing a medley of popular rock songs and a variety of contemporary musical compositions, the MIT Ensemble entertained the student body on March 29.

Directed by Mr. Fred Pendergraft, the KHS Stage Band presented a program on April 30. Guest musicians from various military bands highlighted the performance.

Providing an opportunity for the student body to voice opinions, the SCA presented two assemblies prior to the elections. Following these assemblies, the students used the new voting machines and voted for the candidate of their choice.

Following a week of computer matching, the SCA presented the results in the Dating Game, held May 6. Cathy Dunn captured Mac Collins and was consequently chosen as his date. Bonnie Thompson chose Billy Auer for her escort, and Glendell Parker was selected by Diane Walker. The three couples were awarded free tickets to the movies for any time of their choice during the following month.

Vocalizing, members of the MIT ensemble, "The Logarithms," entertain the student body. Awaiting Bonnie Thompson's decision, dating game contestants, Nick Galla, Jim Haggard, and Billy Auer sit hidden by the screen on stage.

Variation accents pageant; Wagner captures KHS title

Variation was the controlling factor of 1971's Miss KHS Pageant held March 5. Contestants displayed a diversification in individual talents consisting of pop and conventional singing, modern and jazz dancing, and a gymnastic routine.

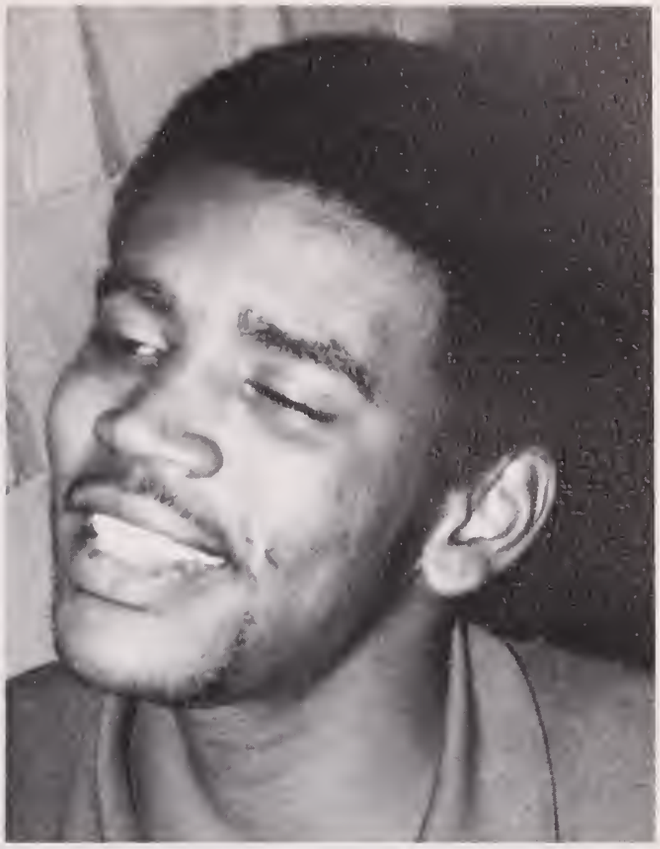
Skill and poise were decisive factors in the talent competition and question-and-answer period of the pageant. Dating apparel and evening gown competition stressed the beauty and grace of the contestants.

Vocalizing the melody "The Look of Love," Eugenia Martin placed second runner-up in competition for the Miss KHS title. Rompersuit and railroad cap was the attire of Bonnie Thompson, first runner-up, as she performed a dance pantomime.

Debbie Wagner was enthroned as 1971's Miss KHS. For her talent competition, the new Miss KHS performed a gymnastic routine on uneven parallel bars to the record accompaniment "Gone with the Wind."

Jim Lanham, accompanist, provided the background music for the pageant. Between acts, Ken Charity entertained the audience with a repertoire of songs.

Escorted by Herbert Manley and Jimmy Haggard, the new Miss KHS, Debbie Wagner, receives laurels from Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. Modeling for dating apparel competition, Eugenia Martin competes for the Miss KHS title.



Pondering the selection of gifts, Miss Gerry Farinholt and Mrs. Jane Wetzel discuss plans for the Miss KHS Pageant. Rehearsing for the Miss KHS Pageant, Ken Charity practices his repertoire of songs. Expressing fear in a modern dance, Belinda Sikorski interprets "Aquarius" for talent competition in the Miss KHS Pageant.

Dotson takes talent show

Delayed a week by an unseasonal snow storm, the Junior Class still managed to present their annual talent show. Ranging from a flute solo to a rock band, the talent show provided a means through which students could display their varied abilities.

First place honors went to Coral Dotson for her rendition of the songs "Bobby Magee" and "Share the Land." Peggy Julian placed second with her piano performance of Chopin's "Fantasia Impromptu." Placing third was Kemal Lawson playing the flute solo of "Flight of the Bumblebee."

Susi Allison and Kathy Rexrode, co-chairmen of the talent show, joined sponsors, Mrs. Jane Rogers and Mrs. Eliza Fields, in presenting the show. Judges were Mr. James Sanford, Mr. Robert MacLachlan, Mr. Jim Steele and Mrs. Susan Jones.

Tuning up his guitar, Claude Gatling of Freedom waits to play. Performing at the Junior Class Talent Show, Coral Dotson sings "Bobby Magee".

KHS glides over Ferguson; Martin reigns as '71 queen

Early in the Kecoughtan Ferguson game, KHS established a lead that assured the 80-55 victory over the Ferguson Falcons in the 1971 Basketball Homecoming game held January 8.

Half time ceremonies included the crowning of queen, Eugenia Martin, and presentation of her court. She was escorted by team captain, Alfonzso Blackley, and received a rose bouquet from Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. Remaining members of the Homecoming court were CeCe King, senior attendant; Louise Griffin, junior attendant; and Cathy Dunn, sophomore attendant. They were honored with inscribed silver bowls.

Receiving a rose bouquet, Queen Eugenia Martin is escorted by team captain, Alfonzso Blackley. After presentation, sophomore attendant Cathy Dunn and escort Rocky Copley await the crowning of the 1971 Basketball Queen.

'Comings and Goings' goes to district play competition

Competing in the District One-Act Invitational, KHS Thespians presented Megan Terry's Comings and Goings at William and Mary, February 19.

Exploring the various relationships between men and women, Miss Terry used the generalizations "He" and "She" to portray customers, waitresses, and husbands and wives. The lack of stage scenery and props, together with the use of stylized makeup and unisex costumes, accented this theme.

Changes of characters and scenes occurred frequently, often in mid-sentence. Fate, striking a gong, announced the changing of scenes and characters. Mark Wampler, Lisa Keen, Connie Mitchell, and Audrey Newman characterized various male and female roles, while Bonnie Tschirhart portrayed Fate.

Exploring the husband-wife relationship, Mark Baker and Audrey Newman interreact in the "Touch Me" scene. Presenting a comic dissertation, Mark Wampler shocks the audience with dirty jokes.

Slides highlight 'Peter Pan'

Transforming the stage into a woodland fantasy, colored slides intermingled with natural scenery to produce the setting for J. M. Barrie's Peter Pan held May 20, 21, and 22. Scenes of local woodscapes, Williamsburg homes, and Yorktown ships created the atmosphere for this child's fantasy.

Tryouts revealed an abundance of talent which necessitated dual roles of the lead characters, Peter and Wendy. The two Peter Pans were portrayed by sophomores Steve Whitney and Mike Kinzie, while seniors Audrey Newman and Connie Mitchell played Wendy.

Realizing the sorrows and responsibilities which burdened adults, the children entered a Never-Never Land where children refused to grow old. After leaving the children with Wendy's parents, Peter returned to Never-Never Land with Tinkerbell.

Stifling the tell-tale ticking of the clock, the crocodile, played by John Fischgrund, shuffles across the stage in a soft-shoe routine. Searching for his shadow, Peter Pan portrayed by Steve Whitney, explores the Darlings' household.

Mame captivates audience

Premiering March 18, 1971, Broadway's musical extravaganza Mame captivated the Kecoughtan audience.

As the curtain rose at 8:00 p.m., the audience followed two lost persons in the hustle and bustle of New York City. After reading instructions from his father's letter of introduction, Patrick Dennis, played by Mike Kinzie, and governess, played by Connie Mitchell, found a haven in Patrick's household. As an initiation to Mame's bohemian way of life, they attended thirteen cocktail parties within two weeks.

Although Patrick adapted very quickly, Agnes Gooch remained a sore spot for Mame's pride. This was soon remedied when Gooch "opened a new window" and left the confines of Mame's apartment.

Mame relied on Patrick, Agnes, and Ito, a bartender-butler, after the stock crash of 1926. On her first day as a manicurist, Mame met a rich Southern gentleman, Beauregard Jackson Pickett Burnside, played by Mark Baker. Following an introduction to the Southern aristocracy, Mame married Beauregard.

Abounding with a kaleidoscope of successes and failures, Mame's life exemplified her motto "Life is a banquet."

Pregnant Agnes Gooch returns to the household of Auntie Mame after several months of experiencing life. Jubilant with holiday cheer, Richard Sheppard, as Ito, joins in a chorus of "We Need a Little Christmas." Inspired by the Christmas season, Beauregard Burnside, Mark Baker, invites the starving Mame for a dinner date.

Amused by Mame's riding talent, Uncle Jeff and Cousin Fan are amazed by the Yankee's ability in the fox hunt. Huddling amidst the dangers of New York City, Patrick, Mike Kinzie, and Gooch, Connie Mitchell, read the letter of introduction from his father.

Project aids needy Indians

Participating in an international project, Kecoughtan Keyettes sponsored a celebrity auction on April 30, 1971. After all the bidding was over, a check for $125, earmarked for the American Indians, was mailed to the International Keyettes.

Early in the second semester Keyettes mailed over 200 letters to famous celebrities asking for any personal item which could be sold. Since many celebrities did not respond, fewer items than last year were auctioned.

Consistently, albums were the hottest selling items. Robert F. Kennedy's paperweight went for $8.00. An autographed Globetrotter basketball was sold for $3.00.

Although the stars' items sold well, the teachers' donations sold better. Miss Cheryl Meidinger's print of Romeo and Juliet sold for $10.00. A prom formal or class night dress made by Mrs. Linda Hamlin went for $9.00.

To refresh the bidders during the auction, cokes and baked goods were sold.

Handing the auctioneer an album, Judy Johnson and Ardys Debolt assist Mr. Richard Lackey. Observing the invigorated bidding, Vickie Hubert is caught up in the excitement of an auction. "What do I hear for the Lettermen Album?" asks Mr. Lackey, auctioneer.

Carnival day plans games

Fun and games highlighted the 1971 ICC Carnival held April 2 in the cafeteria. Through the organizations of the ICC, clubs and organizations maintained game booths.

Unlimited as to the number of activities they could sponsor, organizations such as the SCA and the Independent Organizing Committee had members working at several booths. A basketball throw, Hot Wheels, a wagon race and bowling were sponsored by the SCA while IOC sponsored a thrift shop and sponge throw. Other organizations maintained activities such as bake sales, cakewalk, fortune-telling and balloon selling.

Money from these efforts went to the club treasuries. Profits from the SCA booths were donated to the project of building a school in an under-developed country.

Clowning around, Joan Fuller sells balloons for the Junior Class.

'Learning by doing' themes American Legion program

"Learning by doing" keynoted the American Legion Boys' State and Girls' State Conventions in Virginia. Students from across the state learned the responsibilities of American citizenship through participation in state, country, and city governments.

Outstanding juniors were eligible on the basis of their leadership qualities, patriotism, cooperativeness, honesty, character, scholarship, and physical fitness.

Delegates and alternates were selected by a faculty committee which was composed of Junior Class sponsors, the principal, the junior guidance counselor, and eight junior teachers representing different areas of study.

KHS hosted an evening for all delegates and their families. Along with American Legion representatives, Diane Bryant, Speaker of the House of Girls' State, spoke to the group about her previous experiences at Girls' State.

Reminiscing, Diane Bryant recalls her experiences at Girls' State.

Girls' State—Front Row: Jane Andrews, Sheila Gibson, Sandra Maglin, Leslee Ehle. Second Row: Betsy Sedwick, Faye Walker, Katie Bartley, Lisa Williams.

Seniors vote for speakers

Setting a new precedent, the Hampton City School System abolished the recognition of valedictorian and salutatorian honors. In an effort to present a more representative cross-section of the graduating class, Bernard Pishko and Michael Newsome were chosen by the top twenty-six seniors as spokesmen for the Class of '71.

Sponsored by the Francis Mallory Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Good Citizenship Award was presented to Diane Bryant and Don Pizzeck. Candidates for this award were nominated primarily by senior homerooms, and final selection was reviewed by a special faculty committee.

Advancing in the girls' district division, Diane competed for a one-hundred dollar scholarship. Among the criteria she had to submit was a booklet consisting of a photograph of herself; three recommendations from church, community, and school; a list of her activities; and a school transcript.

Speakers for commencement exercises, Bernard Pishko and Michael Newsome, discuss their speeches. Congratulations from Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. go to DAR Good Citizenship Award winners, Diane Bryant and Don Pizzeck.

Chaperoning the gala affair, Mrs. Jane Price and Mr. Harry B. Dyche, Jr. converse while Mrs. Shirley Booth observes the night's festivities. Caught in the atmosphere, juniors slow dance to the theme song, "Just My Imagination."

Temple selected by juniors

"Just My Imagination" captured the spirit of the 1971 Junior Class Ring Dance held April 24 at the Rodef Sholem Temple.

With great expectations of the night's activities, couples attired in formal wear paraded through the doorways of the hall and focused on the blue, green, and gold decorations which adorned it.

At 10:30 p.m. individual gifts were presented to those who devoted their time and energies to the Ring Dance. Directing the work force, Nancy Teagle and Jim Lanham co-chaired the responsibilities of preparing for the festive occasion.

To help remove the touch of formality, juniors were entertained by Charlie McClendon and the Magnificients as they played such tunes as "Make Me Smile," "My Three Times," and "Twenty-five to Four." The band chairmen, Louise Wilkins and Bob Sullivan, were responsible for the selection of the band.

Exchanging glances, juniors Jack Stoecker and Anne Riesbeck listen to band music. Passing a smile to a friend, Becky Parks dances with date Brett Burkhart. Contemplating the night's events, junior Johnny Holdren waits for his date.

Wide-eyed, Lisa Keen observes a dancer on the prom floor, while Mark Wampler listens to the band. Smiling, Diane Bryant hands Don Pizzeck a token of appreciation for his labor as Chairman of the Senior Prom. Entranced by the music, John Tredennick dances to "Sly and the Family Stone's" "I Want to Take You Higher," as Pat Davis and date Nancy Teagle join in the spirit of the prom.

Senior prom highlights '71; change typifies prom night

Swinging to the music of "The Okayssions," seniors and guests danced until one o'clock in the morning at the 1971 prom held May 15 at Rodef Shalom Temple.

As a climax to the evening's festivities, Queen Belinda Sikorski and King Bob Pletcher were presented to the Senior Class. Changing the composition of the court, seniors elected prom princess, Judy Johnson, and prince, Mike Agud.

Changing the prom setting to Rodef Shalom Temple eliminated the need for elaborate decorations. Silver and purple, prom colors, dominated the decor of the prom. Silver and purple candles, bids, favors, and napkins carried out the color scheme.

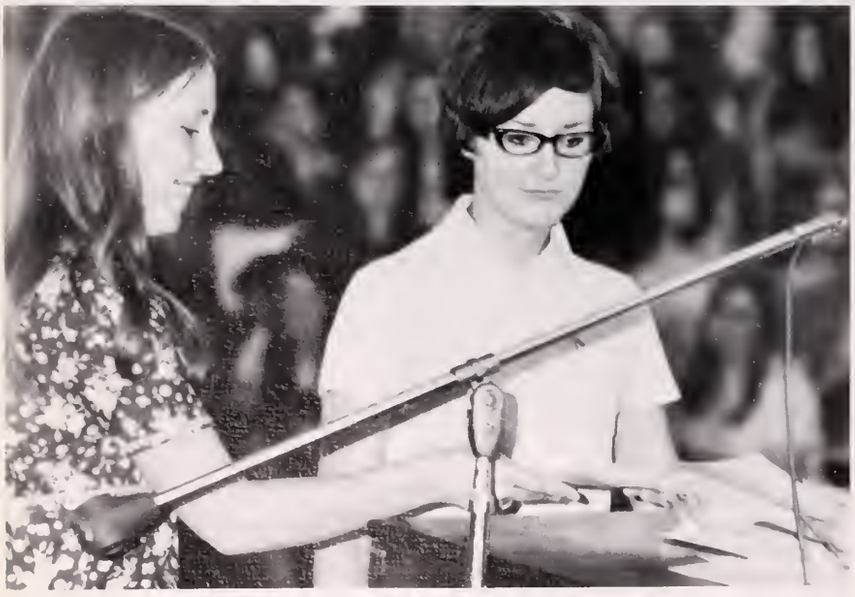
Later that night, Diane Bryant presented prom chairman Don Pizzeck a key chain and co-chairman, Vicki Reason, a necklace, tokens of the class' appreciation for their work.

Caught off guard, Bob Pletcher stares ahead, as Belinda Sikorski gazes at a fellow senior. Displaying enthusiasm, Teresa Trigg and Thorny Staples delight in dancing to music of "The Okayssions."

KHS honors top students

Held on May 27, the Awards Assembly recognized students and teachers for their accomplishments. The student body congregated in the gymnasium to observe this two and a half hour presentation of awards.

Among the awards bestowed were English awards, math awards, and varying awards in the arts and science fields. Highlighting the assembly, the Bow and Arrow Awards were presented to teachers Mrs. Dorothy Fleck, Mrs. Yetta Greene, and Senior Class President Diane Bryant. Best Club of the Year Award was captured by the Math Honor Society for their involvement and active participation throughout the school year.



Receiving a standing ovation, Mrs. Dorothy Fleck admires Bow and Arrow Award voted to her by a faculty committee. Observing the presentation of Best Business Student Award to Pam Milton, Diana Cooper awaits her award. Beaming, Ardys DeBolt accepts Club of the Year Award for the Math Honor Society.

Class history reflects past; Mr. Dyche awards seniors

Taking a nostalgic look at the past and an inquisitive view into the future, seniors gathered at the 1971 Class Night, June 4, in the auditorium.

Presented via a "Honeymooners" skit, the class history reenacted past memories. In a news broadcast, Lynn Lindsey and Steve Papcun located their old cronies in the year 1984.

Following Diane Bryant's reading of the class poem, "Prepared We Are," written by John Ulmschneider, several awards were presented. Class keys were given to twenty seniors for their outstanding contribution to the Class of '71. Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. announced the ten outstanding seniors.

Gifts to the school from the graduates were two welcome mats for the gym and two silver punch bowls for school functions. Concluding the evening's activities, the graduating class sang the Alma Mater as they filed out quietly before a standing audience of friends.

High schools hold service

Blending colors of green, red, gold, maroon, and white, '71 graduates from the four city high schools marched into the Hampton Roads Coliseum for Baccalaureate June 7. Setting a religious mood, the combined A Cappella choirs of the city schools sang hymns as the seniors proceeded to their seats.

Following the processional, the Reverend William B. Schiele of Jefferson Park Baptist Church offered the invocation. The Reverend Jarvis Hearn, Missionary to the Deaf, read the scripture after a selection by the choirs.

Stressing to the graduates the point "God is not Dead," the Reverend Cotesworth P. Lewis of Bruton Parish Church in Williamsburg spoke on the "new morality." Emphasizing the unity between God and man, the Reverend Lewis asked students to be dependents upon God and neighboring friends.

After the singing of "Hymn for Our Times," the benediction was offered by the Reverend John H. Knubb of Hampton Christian Church.

KHS honors '71 graduates

Graduation exercises held June 11 marked the end of twelve years of work and the realization of a dream for 475 seniors.

After the Reverend Robert L. Parsons of Buckroe United Methodist Church gave the invocation, Diane Bryant, class president, addressed her fellow classmates for the final time. Student speaker Michael Newsome stressed the importance of academic achievement coupled with a challenge of work.

Following the address, Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. announced awards, grants, and scholarships received by the Class of '71. The L. G. Balfour Key for the outstanding senior was awarded to Larry Davis. Diane Bryant received the Elizabeth Cook Award.

Challenging senior class members, Bernard Pishko reinforced the idea that graduates could change the world.

Mr. Garland R. Lively, superintendent of Hampton Schools, addressed the class, after which Mr. Dyche and Mr. R. Fletcher Gray presented diplomas.

The Reverend Chester Smith from Hall Road Mission of Hampton Baptist Church offered a benediction. Concluding the 1971 Commencement, the seniors, proud and happy, then recessed from the Coliseum.

Rejoicing in completing his high school education, John Tredennick waves to fellow classmates as he leaves the stage. With a firm handshake and a big grin, Alfonzso Blackley receives his diploma from Mr. Harry B. Dyche, Jr.

Tuning their instruments before graduation ceremonies, band members, under the direction of Mr. Fred Pendergraft, practice the processional "Pomp and Circumstance." Receiving her diploma, Senior Class President Diane Bryant is congratulated by Mr. Harry B. Dyche, Jr., principal. Mounting the steps to the stage, Scott Henderson awaits his diploma.

Seniors look forward to college, jobs in fall

Smiling with appreciation, Larry Davis returns to his seat after accepting the Balfour Key presented to an outstanding senior boy. Putting her hood in place, Miss Nell Stewart prepares for the ceremonies, while Miss Donna Price waits to aid her fellow faculty member. Urging '71 graduates to change the world, Bernard Pishko speaks for the Senior Class.

Sports rouse anxious fans

Electric excitement ran through the fans from the first football kickoff to the last baseball pitch. On the bench and in the pit, athletes, prepared by long, exhausting after school practices, resolved their total selves to fight for the victory of the team.

Coaches, absorbed by the tension of competition, watched as young men gained self-confidence and self-knowledge. In fighting to win, each team member unselfishly committed himself to the coalition of varied goals for the attainment of one common goal.

Warrior gridders endeavor to better last year's record

Under the direction of second year mentor Ben Rich and his assistants, the Warrior team compiled a 4-6 record for the 1970 season. Establishing victories over Denbigh, James Blair, and Warwick, the gridders momentarily held first place in the district.

Early in the Hampton game the KHS gridders led the peninsula champs 6-0. However, the Crabbers went on to overpower the Warriors.

Led by tri-captains Chuck Wingfield, James Cooley, and Roger Conner, the team also held Bethel to its second lowest score of the year.

The Fall Sports Banquet ended the season with Chuck Wingfield voted as Best Back and David Quigley as Best Lineman. Gene Jordan and Steve Snaidman won the titles of Savage of the Year and Most Improved, respectively. The honor of Most Valuable Player went to Senior Neil Smith, Best Sport to John Crenshaw and Defense Award to Roger Conner.

Warriors loft aerial tactics

JV's achieve winning year

Establishing a winning season, the Warrior Junior Varsity posted a 4-3 record. This year's captains, Dennis Fields and Roger Saunders, led a team that suffered only three defeats, each by only six points. Wins over Carver, Ferguson, James Blair, and a forfeit by Pembroke highlighted this season. During the season, Coaches Steve Hochman and Revis Conrad spent many hours with the team in order to establish the Warrior system and a winning season.

At the Fall Sports Banquet, Alan Paraschos was voted Most Valuable Back, and Dennis Fields and Roger Saunders won captains' awards.

Hit by a James Blair defender, quarterback Alex Paraschos laterals the pigskin to Von Roberts.

Trackmen grab 4-0 season

Undefeated in dual meet competition, the Warrior team established the best winter track season in the history of Kecoughtan High. Veteran runners and consistent individual performances enabled Warriors to finish fourth in the Peninsula District Meet and fifteenth in the State Meet.

Mac Collins set new records in the state indoor mile with a time of 4:18.1 and the 880 run in district competition. Strong performances were also turned in by Mike Davis, Steve Thomas, John Crenshaw, Paul Richardson, and Jerry Hill.

Participating in a new venture, twelve track members competed in the Naval Academy relays consisting of 1400 contenders.

Warriors take decisive win; subdue arch-rival Hampton

Offensive leaders, Don Belbin and Steve Laxton, spearheaded the Warrior's winning season. Last quarter rallies characterized the 1970-71 basketball season. However, the roundballers had a better than average record in overall district competition.

Warrior highlights began with a decisive victory over arch rival Hampton. The team also set a new school record, against Menchville, for fewest points allowed in one game. Two victories each over Carver and James Blair boosted the Warriors' attack.

Kecoughtan's defensive efforts ranked them fifth in a district of twelve teams. The team was led by the play of team captain Doug Blackley and fellow seniors Steve Laxton, Don Belbin, and Stanley Ham. Underclassmen also saw considerable action.

Coached by Mr. James Hathaway and assisted by Mr. Dave Dwyer, the team participated in the district tournament on the strength of a 6-6 conference record. Against Newport News in tournament action, a late Warrior rally eventually fell short as the Typhoons went on to the state tourney.

JV team defeats Hampton

Highlighting the season by defeating Hampton High and Newport News High Schools, the Junior Varsity Roundballers finished the season with a 12-6 record and third place in conference play. After losing the first two games of the season to York and Pembroke, the team became consistent winners, defeating rivals, Pembroke and Carver. Mike Ham and Captain Gary Doughty contributed much to the team spirit and winning efforts on the hard court. After completing the season, five J.V.'s achieved varsity status and dressed for the district tournament action.

Trackmen set new records

Finishing the 1971 season with a 5-2 district record, the spring track team displayed another winning year. Returning lettermen provided the variation and ability to reset old Kecoughtan records and add to the successful track season.

Mac Collins set a new school record of 9:30.2 in the two mile against Menchville and another school record of 4:15 in the mile against Pembroke. Steve Thomas also set a school pole vault record of 12'9" in the same meet.

Attending the Hampton Institute Relays in April, the team of seniors, Al Blackley, Mike Davis, Jerry Hill, and junior Mac Collins set a meet record in the Distance Medley with a time of 10:57.1.

Moving out in front, senior Mike Davis begins his kick in the two mile run edged by Vincent Clinton. Regaining the lead in the Distance Medley, senior Jerry Hill concentrates on winning the event.

Team vies for district title

Overcoming inexperience, the Warrior tennis team posted an 8-3 record. Losing to Ferguson, Bethel, and Warwick, the team finished fourth in district competition.

Led by team captain Mike Williams and first year mentor Ron MacVittie, the netmen advanced three players, Mike Popp, Steve Scallion, and Chuck Wright, to district tournament action.

Establishing identical 9-2 records, junior Louis Buldain and senior Mike Williams achieved the best singles records. Playing the number one spot on the team was junior Mike Popp.

Team compiles 5-3-1 slate

Establishing another winning season, the Warrior golf team compiled a 5-3-1 record. Placing third in the district tournament at Newport News, the team went on to regional competition and finished fifth.

Starting the season slowly, the golfers were narrowly defeated by James Blair, Hampton, and Bethel, but still managed to have a successful season.

Scoring consistently low, returning lettermen took victories over Menchville, Denbigh, Warwick, and Ferguson.

Robin Rubrecht maintained the lowest seasonal score, an average of 78; he was followed by low scores from Kenny Neill and Bobby Wills.

Team swims record times

Posting a winning record of 3-1 in district competition, the Warrior tankmen improved previous season records under the first year direction of Coach Steve Hochman. With several experienced and consistently strong swimmers, the team took victories over Pembroke, Bethel, and James Blair.

Swimming in district championships at Hampton Institute's new pool, the Warrior tankmen took second place and set four new individual records. As well as setting a new record in the 100 yard butterfly, Doug Grand set a new time of 2:00.2 in the 200 yard freestyle. Captain Scott Henderson set a 50 yard freestyle time of 24.0. Another record was broken by the 400 yard freestyle relay team with a time of 3:44.4.

Consistent showings from Herb Barnhart, Mike Brennand, and Chuck Duckworth throughout the year compiled a bulk of the team's points. Entering the Eastern Regional Championships, the Tankers took third place with strong performances from Henderson in the 50 freestyle and Duckworth in 400 freestyle; Grant set a record time of 52.0 in the 100 freestyle.

Stretching to maintain the lead, junior Richard Storey leaps into the water. Racing across the pool, Mike Brennand strokes toward the finishing wall. Displaying his form while executing a gainer, John Rogers scores team points.

Warriors snare district title

Winning Kecoughtan's first major district championship, the Varsity Baseball team ended season play with a 17-2 record. Boasting the district's highest team batting average of .357, the Warriors won both the district title and the tournament title. Defeated 7-4 by Cradock High School, the team was eliminated from the regional championship tournament.

Behind the arm of Chuck Wingfield, who posted an overall 13-1 record, the Warriors defeated every team in the district. Led by Coach Buddy Denton and Captain Malcolm McLean, the team's 3-1 victory over Bethel in tournament action avenged an earlier loss to the Bruins.

Leading the team's hitting, Danny Keith finished the season with a .439 average. Wingfield achieved a .429 average while teammates Roger Overby, Ron Mitchell, Marc Scheumann, Bobby Hess, Bill Tinsley, Malcolm McLean, and Ricky Price hit in the 300's.

Most Valuable Player, an award selected by the team, was presented to Chuck Wingfield along with the Leading Pitcher Award. Danny Keith received the Leading Hitter Award while Malcolm McLean was awarded the Captain's Plaque.

Four medals won by GRA

Excelling in a variety of sports, the Girls' Recreation Association participated in gymnastics, basketball, and softball.

At Eastern Regional competition in Norfolk, the gymnastic team captured four medals for their performances in floor exercises, on the balance beam, and on the uneven parallel bars. With instruction from Miss Marty Huffman, the team presented routines for the Regional Keyette Convention and for the Kecoughtan PTA.

Hosting a play day, the GRA basketball team shared their skills and techniques with girls from neighboring high schools. After competing in several games, the basketball squad posted a 2-1 season.

Rounding out the year, the GRA softball team battled Pembroke and Bethel and highlighted the season with a 14 to 0 win over arch rival Hampton.

Entities fuse behind clubs

Providing constructive outlets for special feelings and interests, clubs and organizations made school more than the everyday required subjects. Students clamored for the established approval of newly birthed groups dedicated to sparking the betterment of the school and surrounding community.

In a joint fund raising effort, all clubs banded together for the ICC Carnival. Through each person's commitment, groups as well as individuals benefitted by working towards constructive goals.

SCA marked by dissenters

Marked by change and dissent, the SCA asserted itself as a relevant group.

Modernizing the process of voting, the novelty of the voting machine injected enthusiasm into the spring SCA elections held March 30.

Attacked from all sides, the SCA initiated programs that sought to involve the varied personalities of KHS students.

Voting on the special project of the year, students elected to help finance the construction of a school in an underdeveloped country. While sponsoring the annual "Toys for Tots" Christmas campaign, the SCA also implemented new reforms.

To enforce a more representative form of government, the SCA decided that motions must be turned in to executive board members prior to SCA meetings. After heated debate, the council determined that voluntary purchase of SCA cards should replace mandatory purchase. Securing its position, the gallery retained the privilege of participation in discussion.

ICC Carnival boosts SCA

Coordinating and organizing various school activities throughout the school year, the ICC met on bimonthly dates to handle business. The Inter-Club Council was responsible for the maintenance of a student point system which served to limit students' participation. Such a system was devised so that more students could effectively and efficiently participate in extracurricular activities.

As an organization it regulated all club money making projects and off school events. Dominating the club's duties was the sponsorship of the Homecoming Parade and the annual Spring Carnival. Consisting of a representative from each school club, the ICC was headed by Don Kirk, SCA vice-president. Carol Matthews served as vice-president, and Heather Williams acted as secretary-treasurer.

Asking for admission of IOC into ICC, Mark Baker outlines the new club's constitution.

IOC plans ecology teach-in

Motivated by a dedication to change, members of the Independent Organizing Committee sought their own approach to school and community involvement.

Concern over water pollution prompted students to investigate potential offenders through films and water tests. After compiling all evidence, the proper authorities were notified.

Culminating the year was the Earth Day Teach-In which featured speakers from both industry and ecology oriented groups. The outdoor program also featured entertainment by Leviathan, a local rock band.

Seeking involvement within the school, the members of IOC showed active concern over making the SCA a vital governing body. Initiating many of the bills passed by the SCA, IOC stimulated changes within the approved framework.

Dyche pins new members; parents attend ceremonies

Being the largest number ever, thirty-four KHS students became members of the National Honor Society on April 28. Held in the library, the ceremonies included presentation of NHS pins to inductees by Mr. Harry B. Dyche, Jr., principal. Club members provided cookies and punch to new members and parents.

Who's Who in High School Honor Societies, a national honor society organization, was formed and six NHS members were nominated for the honor. Mac Collins, Ardys DeBolt, Nancy Jo Dunn, Jane Nelson, Mike Newsome, and Steve Papcun entered into scholarship competition with other high school students in the United States.

Funds earned from the NHS bookstore last year aided the society members in purchasing new books for the Kecoughtan library.

Prosl speaks on polygons

Action epitomized the Math Honor Society for the 1970-71 school year. At the year's first meeting Dr. Richard H. Prosl, mathematics professor at William and Mary, spoke to club members on rolling polygons.

Capturing first place in the Homecoming Parade, MHS members constructed a float entitled "MHS Bets We Win." Displayed on the float was a set of playing cards and dice.

To obtain money for a scholarship, a car wash was held in May. The scholarship was awarded at the induction ceremonies to a MHS member who had actively participated in all club activities. At the induction eighteen new members were welcomed into the club membership.

Superior journalists chosen for Quill and Scroll initiates

Quill and Scroll, an international honor society for outstanding high school journalists, was composed of students who had distinguished themselves in the four journalistic productions at KHS. Club membership was confined to eligible students participating in the yearbook, literary magazine, newspaper, and radio programs offered by the school.

Sponsored by Mrs. Joel Grimm and Mrs. Evelyn Dawkins, the highlight of the year was the induction of 35 students.

Throughout the year, members in the society could be found at work on layouts, copy, and photography; Saturday mornings Tom-Tom members aired the school news at WVEC radio station.

Speaker for the annual induction of new members was Mr. Howard Eanes, assistant managing editor of the Roanoke Times. Mr. Eanes spoke on problems of modern day news reporting.

Staff utilizes small format

Modernizing their magazine, the Torch staff used colored paper on which to print their material. Utilizing a smaller format, the staff concentrated upon selecting only the best material submitted.

First place was awarded to the Torch at a fall VHSL workshop. Torch sponsor, Mrs. Evelyn Dawkins, taught a class on the production of a literary magazine at the fall and spring VHSL workshop. Staff members also attended a Literary Magazine Workshop held at Bethel High School.

Published only once during the year, the Torch contained more art work than before. The staff worked in cooperation with Miss Cheryl Meidinger, art instructor at KHS, and Tom DeBolt, former KHS student, on the cover design and other artwork included in the literary magazine.

Paper serves as mediator

Acting as a go-between with the student body and the administration, staff members of Tribal Tales included an editorial of explanation in each issue. They sought to explain to the students why the gym was not being used for pep rallies, why the exam schedule was set up as it was, and what the dress code meant.

Virginia Commonwealth University hosted a five-day workshop in the summer for high school editors. Methods of making the paper more relevant to the student body were discussed.

Capitalizing only the first word in the headline, Tribal Tales members sought to modernize both their headlines and nameplate.

Absent from the paper this year was the personality column "Top of the Totem." Instead, more room was used to allow students to voice their opinions. Letters to the editor and student polls were published regularly.

Finding a prospective Tribal Tales buyer, Gene Jordan gives his sales pitch to Belinda Sikorski while staff member Bryan Kayton searches for other customers. Clearing off the day's business, Tribal Tales Editor Jim Lanham readies a page for the printer.

Tomahawkers plan layouts during summer workshops

Tomahawk staffers attended summer classes, directed by Mr. Terry Gilson, ICP representative, to learn modern methods for yearbook layouts, headline fitting, and copy writing.

Representatives John Tredennick, Mike Brennand, and Larry Routten attended the fall Virginia Scholastic Press Association Conference held in Charlottesville. Reviewing problems of yearbooks submitted for judging, the workshop also focused on copy writing, layout design, and business management. Adviser Miss Nell Stewart and staff returned with a First Place Award for the 1970 annual.

Four staff members, Jack Stoecker, Vern Williams, Cindy Stinson, and Betsy Noe, attended the VSPA spring workshop. Classes prepared annual staffers for next year's publication. Mrs. Kathryn Dicus, Tomahawk adviser, taught copywriting.

Headed by Editor Irene West, the Tomahawk staff worked to perfect the modern mosaic design initiated in the 1971 yearbook. Editorial responsibilities included designing introductory and divider pages. Pam Davis, business manager, handled financial aspects of the yearbook.

Checking for misspelled names, Kathy Urbano consults the IBM class directory. Contemplating the layout plan of the yearbook, Editor Irene West and Layout Editor John Crenshaw consider editorial changes. Selling protective covers for the 1970 Tomahawk, Patti Allison hoards her money in a cigar box.

Photographers assist staff

Beleaguered by long after school hours, photographers worked in the often thankless jobs of picture taking, developing, and printing.

Trying new techniques and developing processes, photographers keyed themselves to provide unusual and eyecatching photographs for Tomahawk members.

Though frustrated by the necessity to reprint pictures and to take last minute pictures, photographers managed to fill the staff's needs.

New equipment was purchased to professionalize the darkroom. A telephoto lens, a wide angle lens, and a new Honeywell strobe helped the photographers do their jobs.

Headed by junior Vern Williams, the staff was also comprised of Dan Williams and Mike Brennand.

Radio shows aired weekly

Features on drugs, women's rights, and the peace symbol highlighted Kecoughtan's weekly radio program, Warrior Tom-Tom. In addition to feature news programming, the show aired the news of KHS events.

Receiving help from WVEC disc jockeys and technicians, Tom-Tom staff broadcasters utilized the modern professional equipment to produce the show.

Traveling to Virginia High School League's fall publications' workshop, radio staffers won a Trophy Award, denoting the highest achievement in programming.

Warriors use quick recall

Warrior debaters, coached by Miss Carole Lushinsky and Mrs. Arlene Miller, argued the pros and cons of the 1970-71 national debate topic. Resolved: That the Federal government should establish finance and administer programs to control air and/or water pollution in the United States.

Sharpening skills of rapid recall and utilizing powerful vocabulary necessary to win, team members practiced long hours. In preparation for the debate with the Warwick Farmers, KHS debaters studied the mechanics of debating and argumentative procedure.

Captain Cathy Stronski and senior Cathy Turner argued the affirmative of the resolution. Warwick's negative team, however, had prepared a structurally stronger case than the affirmative was able to penetrate.

Checking the facts, Captain Cathy Stronski corners her opposition in a heated debate.

Contests aid speech skills

Promoting public speaking among KHS students became the goal of the Speech Club. Speech contests drew participants from interested Warriors. These contests stressed the need for perfect elocution, eye contact, and voice projection.

Winning Kecoughtan's American Legion Oratorical Contest, Dave Farrar delivered an interpretation of the Bill of Rights.

"Challenge of Freedom" was the national topic for the "I Speak for Democracy" contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. First place was awarded to Debbie Johnson.

To take a break from the daily routine, the Speech Club held a joint picnic in Mariner's Museum Park with members of the Debate Team.

Club attends play seminar

Serving either on stage as an actor or in the wings as a technical worker, Drama Club members acquired new skills to produce desired effects.

In addition to staging four productions, club members attended productions by other dramatic groups. Students attended local productions at Hampton Institute and the Peninsula Community Theater. Field trips to the Virginia Museum in Richmond and to a William and Mary seminar further enhanced their knowledge of stage craft. Interested students participated in Wedgewood's Experimental Theater.

Laboring under a heavy debt incurred by the purchase of needed materials and poor attendance at the plays, Drama Club members worked to eliminate this debt. Proceeds from patrons' ads in programs and Saturday afternoon children's movies relieved the deficit.

Performing in a drama club assembly consisting of one act plays, John Fischgrund and Jim Allen portray the Fort Monroe Squirrelies. Directing cast members in the fall production, Mr. Thomas Miller, assisted by Richard Sheppard, gestures to the actors in explanation.

Actors excel in stagecraft

Students achieving excellence in dramatic arts were rewarded through selection for membership in the International Thespians Society. Students were inducted on the basis of having earned at least fifteen points for their work in school dramatics. Points were earned according to the students' work on a production and their dedication to furthering the cause of dramatics in the school and community.

Hosted by the Kecoughtan chapter, the Virginia State Thespian Convention was held October 30-November 1. Thespians from around the state attended a series of workshops and lectures organized by KHS Thespians. Guest lecturers spoke on the absurd theatre and conducted a workshop in group encounter.

Helping the Drama Club pay expenses, Thespians presented their second annual "One Twenty-fourth of a Day of Entertainment." Students wrote and directed the production which was composed of a series of skits, pantomimes, and acting exercises. Thespians also sold candy and participated in the SCA carnival by selling snow cones.

KHS Band

Band encourages musicians

Playing a double role on the reservation, the band furnished background training for students planning futures in the music field and at the same time provided music for school activities such as football games and pep rallies.

Under the direction of Mr. Fred Pendergraft, the band sold candy and concert tickets to raise money. This money was used to purchase music, pay guest musicians, and provide funds needed to sponsor trips to band workshops.

In the Hampton Christmas Parade, the KHS Marching Band took first place; later in the year they participated in the Armed Forces Day Parade. Concerts were given at city elementary schools, Hampton Fair Day, and Dixie Hospital. In addition, the band presented fall and spring concerts and special assemblies to the students.

Practicing for an upcoming football game, drum major Neal Kitchin leads the band in marching exercises. Playing at the stage band assembly, Dale Herner performs a trumpet solo. Clutching their instruments, Doug Beason and Jerry Hill await the next musical number.

Resting between routines, Barbara Wilson observes the activities at a pep rally. Leg held high, Donna Hubert performs at Sophomore Orientation Day. Leading the majorettes in a baton routine at a pep rally, Bonnie Thompson keeps time with the music of the band.

Twirlers add zest to band

Marching in the Christmas parade, the Armed Forces Day Parade, and the Hampton Fair Day ceremonies, majorettes participated in community activities. Performing in pep rallies and at football games during half time, the majorettes promoted school spirit.

Kecoughtan's majorettes and marching band members attended UVA's "Band Day." The festival attracted bands from across the state.

Under head majorette Bonnie Thompson, the squad ushered at band concerts as a service to the band.

A Capella Choir

A Cappella tapes TV show

Combining with the three other high schools in Hampton, the A Capella Choir presented two programs at the Hampton Roads Coliseum. On Palm Sunday the choirs took part in the Hampton City Music Festival. For Baccalaureate services the choirs combined to provide religious music.

Featuring fourteen soloists, Handel's Messiah was presented at Christmas to the public free of charge.

Choir members once again journeyed to Portsmouth to tape a Christmas show for Channel 27. The show was aired two nights during the Christmas season.

Outstanding choir members were recognized at the Awards Assembly. Recognition went to Mary Porter, soprano; Lisa Keen, alto; Robert Humphreys, tenor; and Jim Haggard, bass. Tal Fauntleroy received the Senior Award, selected by seniors, while Patti Parks accepted the Arion Award for outstanding musical ability and a high academic average.

Singing during a choral concert, Lisa Keen, Debbie Raiford, and Barbara Boles focus their attention on the director. Joining in song, Becky Parks, Kathy McLaughlin, and Mike Kinzie present "Did I Ever Really Live." Vocalizing "Black Rode the Wind," A Cappella members Dan Williams, Judy Johnson, and Ann Williams follow Mrs. Lucile Sutterer's direction.

Girls' Chorus

Vocalizing in unison, the Girls' Chorus performs during their spring concert. Singing out, choristers Penny Mingee, Judy Porch, and Suzanne Neal lead their section.

Combined choirs entertain students, adults in concert

Largest of any choral group ever to perform at KHS, the 1970-71 Boys' and Girls' Choruses presented their Spring Concert. Directed by Mrs. Lucile Sutterer, these two organization entertained separately; later they joined forces to conclude their presentation as the Concert Choir.

Boys' Chorus reached its peak this year with the largest male choral group in Kecoughtan's history. Accompanied by Peggy Julian, this organization of fifty choristers entertained audiences at Spratley Junior High, Syms Junior High, and at KHS during the fall, winter, and spring concerts.

Aided by accompanist Danyal Lawson, the Girls' Chorus, consisting of 100 voices, also performed at these concerts. Elections of the most outstanding chorus members from each group highlighted the year for these organizations. Chosen as the most outstanding Boys' Chorus member, Sammy Bridgman accepted his award at the Awards Assembly held May 27, 1971. Jeannie Martin also received her award for the most outstanding Girls' Chorus member during this assembly. Recipients were elected by their fellow chorus members.

Bursting forth with song, Boys' Chorus member Butch Franklin performs during the 1971 Spring Concert. Vocalizing selections in concert, Boys' Chorus members sing out to the audience.

Service clubs work in school, community

Keyettes and Key Clubbers, as service clubs, worked to improve the school and community.

Together, they sponsored the annual Mistletoe and Holly Ball during the Christmas season. In festive holiday decorations, students danced to the music of the East Coastmen.

In conjunction with the Hampton Roads Jaycees, Keyettes and Key Clubbers collected money on "Apple Butter Sunday" for Camp Virginia Jaycee. The camp provided a week of summer fun for Virginia's mentally retarded children.

Joining efforts, the two clubs helped to raise money for national charities such as the Heart Fund and the Leukemia Society.

In the spring Keyettes held the annual Celebrity Auction. Proceeds of over $250 went to the American Indians. Hampton's Hotel Chamberlin was the site of the international convention. Hosting the convention, Keyettes exchanged ideas with other chapters.

To boost the club treasury, Key Club members sold football and basketball programs. Two Wednesdays a month the Kiwanis Club of Hampton invited KHS members to attend their breakfast meetings. Here KHS Key Clubbers gained information for possible projects.

Student fire fighters assist in KHS drills, local stations

Enacted as a training program for future firemen, KHS sponsored the Volunteer Firemen. Assisting in school drills, junior firemen checked safety regulations issued by the City of Hampton Fire Departments. Occupying their time during the drills, firemen closed windows and doors, turned off lights, and maintained order.

Following drills, firemen offered suggestions as to how the drills could be improved. In accordance with the training program, firemen gained practical experience by joining local volunteer departments in Foxhill, Buckroe, and Phoebus. In order to be a volunteer fireman, a student had to be sixteen years of age.

Rally unfurls teens' spirits

Attending a three day rally in Washington, D. C., the Kecoughtan Chapter of the Y-Teens joined with other members of their international association to share ideas and interests. Church services and a procession of members in their native costumes highlighted the trip.

In accordance with the purpose of the organization, which centers around service and community projects, the Y-Teens sponsored a Christmas party for the deaf and blind. Also, the club "adopted" a grandmother. Once a month they visited her and took her gifts.

For the benefit of club members, the Y-Teens sponsored recreational trips to New York City and Cape Hatteras, North Carolina.

Unloading boxes from the car, Debbie McCrary passes candy to Y-Teen member Debra Smelik for a money-making project.

Interact Club members sell movie tickets to flick fans

Sponsored by Rotary International, the Interact Club functioned as a community service organization.

Cooperating with the Big Brothers Organization of Hampton, the Interact Club adopted underprivileged children. Acting as older brothers, club members took younger boys to see the Virginia Squires play in the Hampton Roads Coliseum.

Selling tickets to horror and comedy movies and selling Rex Household Super-concentrated Soap, the club added $250 to their treasury. Funds from these projects went towards the Interact Scholarship which was awarded to Pete Wallace.

Conducting a meeting, Bob Kelly listens to possible project suggestions. Displaying a bottle of Rex Household cleaner, Mr. Arnold Ritt, sponsor, discusses some possible selling techniques.

Varsity Club sells snacks

Relieving the thirst of sports fans and then refurbishing them with snacks, the Varsity Club, under the sponsorship of Coach Buddy Denton, increased its treasury to $700.

Money was earned by selling megaphones and refreshments at various school functions, ranging from the Athletic Department's Film Festival to basketball games. On March 10, the club sponsored the faculty-Microphonies game which saw the talents of the educators put to test on the basketball court. Additional proceeds were made when the club sponsored the B-B shoot and soft drink booths at the annual ICC Carnival.

To assist the Athletic Department, club members donated money to buy a camera to film athletic events and to provide trophies for outstanding athletes. The club members also furnished Indian head patches to add to the letter sweaters.

Club membership was restricted to varsity letter winners. Chuck Wingfield was president; Mike Williams, vice-president; Richard Steinberger, treasurer; and Doug Kirk, secretary.

New cheers aid team spirit

Attending Camp Farrar during the summer, cheerleaders learned new cheers, met other cheerleaders, and exchanged ideas on methods to increase school spirit. Afterwards, for two days at the Warrior reservation, they sponsored a cheerleading clinic for cheerleaders in the area. This gave the pepsters an opportunity to improve and practice cheering techniques.

Headed by Nyra Hill and Eloise Gray, the squad earned money for the purchase of new uniforms by washing cars, hosting bake sales, and selling candy.

Aiming to create unified school spirit and showing appreciation towards the athletic teams were the goals of the varsity cheerleaders. Expressing appreciation, cheerleaders distributed candy to the basketball team and pumpkins to the football team.

Resting while the JV's perform during the pep rally, Wanda Creekmore sits near the sidelines. Shouting to the football fans, Captain Nyra Hill cheers the Warriors on.

New chants rally JV teams

After selection in the fall, JV Cheerleaders practiced their recently learned cheers to prepare for the upcoming football season. Boosting the JV team, cheerleaders sparked the team to a 4-3 season.

To arouse spirit in the faculty and student body, the JV's wrote new cheers to introduce at pep assemblies. The Class of '73, led by their cheering squad, succeeded in capturing the spirit jug, a feat seldom accomplished by sophomores.

Headed by Kim Dillard, the JV Cheerleaders supported football team members by placing posters on the football players' lockers. Showing their appreciation of the basketball team, the cheerleaders distributed candy to the players.

Planning an upcoming routine, Alix Grimm, Kim Dillard, and Kathy Baxter await their turn at the pep rally. Arms back and head high, Kim Dillard, head J.V. Cheerleader, paces off the Warrior beat.

Pepsters aid team efforts

Baking treats for the football and basketball teams, painting spirit posters before games, and selling programs at games included some of the duties of Pep Club members. To promote spirit, the Pompom Squad attended all games and cheered in coordination with cheerleaders. Members of the Pompom Squad also participated in the Homecoming Parade.

Appreciation for athletes was expressed by pepsters through efforts to prepare a sport's banquet. As well as decorating for the banquet, club members also served for the dinner.

Earning money with a bake sale and presenting a skit at a pep assembly were other club activities.

Caught off guard, Mike Johnston proposes ideas for money making projects for the French Honor Society. Listening to the special plans for student tutoring, Mary Lou Kline, Linda Christopher, and Jennifer Dodd direct their attention to the presiding officer.

French Clubbers host FHS

Bake sales provided the French Club with funds for the year. Utilizing these funds, the club honored the newly formed French Honor Society with a banquet.

As the first chapter of the National Honor Society in peninsula high schools, the Kecoughtan chapter inducted students with a B+ or A average in French.

Participating in the Christmas Program, French clubbers presented a skit entitled "The Gift of the Magi" and sang French carols, "Sainte Nuit" and "Jeanette Isabella." During Language Week the club displayed articles of French culture in the library showcase; items depicted various cities in France such as Bretagne and Paris.

Distracted by conversation, Ardys Debolt and Nancy Jo Dunn's attention is diverted from discussions of the upcoming elections.

Efforts unite to offer play

The Making of a Santa, an original play, highlighted an active year for the Latin Club. Members combined efforts to evolve Santa from Aeneas, the legendary Roman hero, while the first mate became Rudolph.

During Language Week, March 28-April 3, a showcase displayed objects of Rome's timelessness. A bulletin board, "Latin Lives Today," exhibited the enduring influence of Latin.

Climaxing the activities of the year, a Roman banquet was simulated. Wearing togas and reclining on couches, members dined in Roman fashion.

Club donates library books

Participating in a Drama Club project by selling movie tickets and sponsoring a doughnut sale, German Club members earned necessary money for the year. Proceeds from these sales contributed to the purchase of German books for use by students in the library.

Emphasizing Language Week, March 28-April 3, a showcase was arranged displaying traditional costumes. German helmets, mugs, an iron cross, and a flag were also exhibited.

Assisting in hosting foreign exchange students, club members escorted the visitors to language, history, and English classes. Culminating the visits, members entertained during a reception for the guests.

Entertaining visiting foreign exchange students, Ray Link and John Burnett sing popular songs.

Showcase features culture

Language Week brought forth the flavor of the Spanish culture. Dolls from Spain, pottery from Mexico, silver items from Chile, and flags of South American countries filled the Spanish showcase. Spanish Clubbers made posters and announcements in Spanish while members of the Spanish Honor Society helped entertain and guide visiting foreign exchange students through the halls of KHS.

Diane Bryant, the jolly Spanish Santa, along with other Spanish Club members portrayed the Spanish celebration of Christmas in the annual holiday assembly.

Students who had maintained a 3.5 average and had at least two years of Spanish were eligible for membership in Spanish Honor Society. Fourteen new members were inducted during the initiation held in March.

International Relations get donations for SCA project

Prodded by the International Relations Club in conjunction with the Peace Corps, Warriors voted to provide the necessary funds to build a school in an undeveloped country.

To raise money for the project, club members operated a coat check room at several home basketball games. At ten cents a coat, this service eliminated crowded seating conditions during home games.

Pleading the case of American Prisoners of War, Mrs. F. A. Crow addressed members of the International Relations Club.

In honor of United Nations' Day, October 23, 1970, the club sponsored a van which had exhibits depicting the UN's history.

During the week preceding Halloween, members collected money to help children in underdeveloped countries. The Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF raised $34 for these children.

Science club washes cars

Admitting the twin branches of science, physics and chemistry, the Biological Honor Society became the Bio-Phy-Chem Society.

Grade averages of B or better in science courses had to be maintained to enter the society.

Bio-Phy-Chem provided the means for independent study and use of the laboratories at KHS. Individuals' studies included research on polluted water and analysis of sea water in the Tidewater area.

Operating a car wash, society members participated in the ICC Carnival held April 2, 1971. Organizing a trip to Gatlinburg, Tennessee, the Bio-Phy-Chem members studied the environment of the Smoky Mountains.

Determining the acidity of polluted water, John Ulmschneider works on an IOC research project. Listening to a discussion on a proposed trip to Tennessee, Bio-Phy-Chem members, Jane Nelson, Marty Moll, and Don Taylor, consider possible money-making projects.

Health Careers Club funds money for foreign student

Working primarily as a service organization, the Health Careers Club participated in various community activities. Under the direction of Mrs. Myra Hastings, the club made Christmas cards for the men at the Veterans Administration. During February members baked cookies which were distributed at the Shelton Home for the Aged. They also collected money for the Heart Fund at a neighboring shopping center.

Helping students gain knowledge in the opportunities of health careers, the club sponsored an assembly for the student body. To interest the club members in these opportunities, the organization toured Dixie, Riverside, and DePaul Hospitals.

Two of the fund raising projects which the club undertook were the selling of candy and key chains. With this money members helped to sponsor KHS foreign exchange student Rosa Ramirez on a trip to New York City.

DE sponsors craft display

Continuing a Kecoughtan tradition, the DECA Club sponsored its annual Christmas Craft Shop. Selling various items from local merchants, art students, and home economic students, the club participated in the nonprofit project.

To welcome new and returning teachers, the club held an open house at the beginning of the year. Selling KHS stationery in the fall, DECA added $80 to its treasury.

In conjunction with other DECA clubs from Hampton, the club participated in the Cancer Fund Drive in the spring.

To follow up on KHS distributive education graduates, the club composed an alumni letter. Interesting events of the year were retold in the newsletter.

At the state convention, first place prizes were awarded to Marsha McAdams and the manuals on merchandise information, Karen Roberts for department store merchandising, and Freddie Turner for variety store merchandising.

Reviewing their DE manuals, Freddie Turner and Marsha McAdams recheck their displays. Arranging recently won plaques, DE student Cathy Tunstall adds them to the club's collection of trophies.

FBLA holds sales, picnic

Working to promote better leaders for tomorrow in the business world, FBLA members took field trips to increase their knowledge of the business spectrum. Visiting Thomas Nelson Community College, the future business leaders explored the business department. Another trip to the Computer Center at Langley Air Force Base provided an opportunity for club members to view computers in operation.

Selling stationery in the fall, club members raised over $200. Orders for the mod, school, and parchment types of stationery promoted sales. Bake sales supplied an additional $50 to the treasury.

To treat and show appreciation to mothers, a Mother-Daughter picnic was held in June at Huntington Park.

FTA helps in raising funds for Sarah Bonwell Hudgins

To familiarize themselves with as many phases of the teaching profession as possible, FTA members sought to involve themselves in school and community activities.

Early in the year FTA members sold popcorn at the Drama Club sponsored movies. Over $12 was raised for future projects.

With the attitude of giving, FTA donated gifts to the SCA sponsored "Toys for Tots" campaign.

To help raise the needed funds for the Sarah Bonwell Hudgins School for mentally retarded children, FTA members collected newspapers. Newspapers were then sold by the school to the local fish markets.

Sponsored by Mrs. Alease Gant, the club sent members to all district meetings. Delegates also attended the state convention held in Roanoke, December 11-12.

Boxing popcorn at the Drama Club sponsored movies, Mrs. Alease Gant pauses for a moment's break. Lighting a candle, Scheryl Krieger participates in the installation of incoming FTA officers.

FHA actions service KHS

Arranging activities related to the theme "Our World's Growing Heritage," FHA members attended the WGH Wedding Festival. Visiting Major General Donn Petke's historic home on Ft. Monroe and inviting exchange student Rosa Ramirez to speak at a club meeting were other club related activities.

Sponsoring seasonal projects, FHA members held a Christmas reception for the faculty. Valentines containing messages and candy were sent to children at Sarah Bonwell Hudgins School in February. Green cupcakes and Irish blessings were presented to faculty members on St. Patrick's Day. FHA sponsored monthly projects servicing school and community.

Presiding over an installation ceremony of newly-elected club officers, President Frances Lemon is assisted by sponsor, Mrs. Linda Hamlin. Preparing for an induction ceremony, future homemakers discuss procedures.

Lamps built by students

Members of the Woodshop Club completed various projects throughout the year, one of which was constructing crafted lamps and wooden dice to be given as prizes at the ICC Carnival. The club sponsored a booth in which participants attempted to drive a nail into a board with a certain number of blows.

Several departments and organizations of Kecoughtan High School were aided by the endeavors of Woodshop members. Constructing platforms, members assisted the Drama Department in the production of school plays. In addition, the Woodshop Club built lecterns at a fee of $15 each for any teacher who desired to purchase one.

Student art show featured

Sponsoring the Student Art Show was the prime objective of the Kecoughtan High School Society of the Arts this year. Twelve schools entered original works in four different categories displayed at Willow Oaks Shopping Mall on May 22. Judging the contest were three Peninsula artists who presented first place awards and an award for Best-in-Show. Betsy Sedwick captured this title with a display that included twenty original pieces.

In conjunction with the school, the Society of the Arts worked closely with the Drama Department. Their construction of props and backgrounds aided the Drama Club and enabled the club members to increase their artistic abilities.

As a group the club visited Mariners Museum to view the Juried Art Show. Hand crafted articles were also put on display for sale in the Christmas Shop which was sponsored by the DE club.

Visual aid equipment helps in preparation of activities

Rendering their technical knowledge of machines available for the preparation of school activities, Audio-Sonic Club members assisted in the operation of various audio-visual aids. Students managed equipment ranging from record players to 16MM projectors.

Among the responsibilities delegated to the Audio-Sonics Club were planning lighting for the Miss KHS Pageant, the Junior Class Talent Show, and adding the special effects of a strobe light for the fall play, Fire. They also provided and prepared sound and lighting for use in assemblies, pep rallies, basketball games, and in choral and band concerts.

Surpassing school activities, club members involved themselves in community affairs. They set up the lighting and sound effects for the Lion's Variety Show and for the Theatrical Arts Dance Studio Ballet.

Adjusting the microphone, Mike Fields helps prepare sound equipment for an assembly. Waiting for his cue, Larry Hodges controls the lights at Faculty Frolics.

Military Ball held by club

Selling doughnuts, the NJROTC Club raised money for its annual Military Ball on March 27, 1971. Held at the Langley Yacht Club, the dance was the club's major project of the year. Club members decorated the club room while their parents helped prepare the refreshments.

During the remainder of the year, the club held meetings each month. Films on naval regulations and special services were viewed at several of the meetings.

Conversing with some friends, Joe Paquette and Leslee Ehle wait for the next dance to begin.

Office aides sort, file, type

Filing, typing, and carrying messages occupied one hour each day of student assistants' time. Chosen on the basis of good citizenship, grades, and school attendance, these assistants gave up study hall each day to perform needed tasks—helping the faculty in the main office, clinic, book store, and guidance office.

Duties of student assistants also included preparing seasonal decorations and creative bulletin boards to depict key events. Promoting college night, assistants provided information concerning visiting colleges. Bulletin boards boosting the sports of swimming, wrestling, and basketball portrayed the school's support of these activities. With the traditional turkeys and Pilgrims, the Warriors' mascot, "Allowt Sachem," exemplified the Thanksgiving season at the Reservation.

Students aid library staff

Locating material in the film and research rooms and in the vertical files, library assistants worked in association with the staff. Male students handled the daily distribution of audio-visual equipment to various teachers while female assistants organized the library books.

Students assisted in unloading a massive order of new books afforded through an $8,000 federal grant. Rendering a necessary service, students stamped new books, typed book pockets, and filed author and title cards.

Library Club aids prisoners

Sponsoring "Project 100 Tons," the Library Club collected mail for prisoners of the Vietnam War. Over 1,000 letters pleaded for humane treatment of all war prisoners.

Children's Book Week saw club members reading stories to students at Captain John Smith Elementary School.

To enhance the appearance of the library courtyard, club members planted daffodils and tulips.

Participating in the fall candy sales, members earned over $500 to purchase a gift for the library.

Reading to the children at Captain John Smith Elementary School, library club member Diana Rose performs one of the club's numerous projects during Children's Book Week in the fall. Utilizing the flannelgraph to tell the story of "The Three Bears," Angela Reeves entertains the young students at Captain John Smith Elementary School.

Skills tested via matches

Matched according to their ability, Chess Team members improved their skills by competing in matches against each other. To learn new offensive and defensive moves they studied classic techniques suggested in chess manuals.

Representing KHS in the Peninsula High School Chess League, the team recorded a 4-4 slate. They finished sixth in district competition.

Consisting of five members, Tom Fargis, Mark McCurry, John Osborn, Gary Salada, and Lee McDowell, the team was sponsored by Mr. Reuben Salada.

Participating in a tournament, Maxey Brantley and Stephen Clarkson plan strategy. Practicing for an upcoming match, Lee McDowell concentrates on a move.

Classes fuse efforts, aims

Fusing efforts of the newly-molded sophomores with those of juniors and seniors generated involvement of the individual student at KHS. Student enthusiasm found direction with concerned class sponsors.

Senior and junior classes worked efficiently on promoting the annual ring dance and prom, while sophomores organized Co-Rec Night. Having experienced a miniscule but important part of their lives, underclassmen eagerly awaited their new positions at KHS, while seniors pondered over an ever-promising future.

'71 term of transformation

Transformed into school leaders, the Class of '71 anticipated their final year at KHS.

In September exchange student Rosa Ramirez was introduced at the first senior class meeting. Later in the semester the senior class play, Viet Rock, brought $350 into the class treasury.

Winter brought the confusion of college applications, frustration of college boards, and the ordering of caps and gowns. Highlighting the cold season was the senior class Miss KHS Pageant; senior Debbie Wagner was crowned as the '71 Miss KHS.

Preparation for the Prom began as May 15 neared. Held at the Rodef Shalom Temple, the '71 Prom adopted the theme "Reflections." With the coming of June, seniors attended Class Night, where seniors viewed the light side and the serious with the presentation of awards and scholarships.

For the first time Baccalaureate services were held at the Hampton Roads Coliseum with seniors from all Hampton City schools attending. After final exams, seniors found themselves busy with commencement exercises as the day of graduation neared. At. last on June 11 seniors were awarded with their diplomas.

During a class assembly seniors Lisa Keen and Pam Davis wait to give their reports. Speaking to the newly arrived sophomores on Orientation Day, senior Mike Newsome tells of the daily life of a Kecoughtan student.

Facing the senior class for the first time, Rosa Ramirez, Kecoughtan's foreign exchange student from Peru, is introduced by Senior Class President Diane Bryant.

Outstanding seniors rewarded by faculty

Each year the faculty has recognized those seniors outstanding in various school activities. Based on the students' entire high school records, selection is bestowed upon those seniors who gave of their time to class and school activities or who excelled in one particular area.

With her animated personality, Diane Bryant, Senior Class president, led the class in establishing the largest senior treasury in the school's history.

Unceasing in her efforts to produce par excellence an outstanding yearbook, editor Irene West devoted countless hours to her task.

As a president of the Sophomore Class, Key Club member, Math Honor Society chaplain, and SCA Special Events Chairman, Don Pizzeck proved a forceful leader.

With interests ranging from sports to service clubs to honor societies, Mike Williams worked with spirited enthusiasm.

Learning in a year of change, Neil Smith, as SCA president, proved his capabilities as a leader.

In activities ranging from A Cappella to Keyettes to Varsity Cheerleaders, Eloise Gray demonstrated her willingness to do a job well.

Sparking activities with enthusiasm, Nyra Hill contributed to diversified organizations—from newspaper staff to SCA Executive Board to head Varsity Cheerleader.

As SCA treasurer and Varsity Cheerleader, school-spirited Julie Neely generated enthusiasm for KHS.

As a band member, student government committee chairman, and Math Honor Society member, Mike Newsome efficiently and modestly gave of himself to get jobs done.

Energetic and appreciative, Ardys DeBolt, MHS president, led the club in service projects to capture the coveted Club of the Year Award.

Waiting for the crowd to arrive before an SCA meeting, Mike Williams takes a moment's breather. Inducted into the National Honor Society, Mike Newsome receives his pin and congratulations from Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr.

Preparing for an SCA meeting, Neil Smith and Marilyn Johnson review the business to be discussed while Mike Fields sets up the microphone. Lighting the candle of service, Ardys DeBolt is one of five students whose candles symbolize the ideals of the National Honor Society. Presiding over a Senior Class meeting, Diane Bryant listens to suggestions for the class gift. Selling KHS pennants during the Orientation Assembly, cheerleader Julie Neely chats with sophomore Warrior, Joann Snyder.

Newly attained importance stirs class of '72 members

Proud of their acquired statue, the Class of '72 looked forward to an eventful year as "Jolly Juniors."

Building class unity was the main goal as juniors undertook various projects. Working with other classes, juniors collected over 30,000 boxes for the Hampton game bonfire. For the Homecoming Parade they built a float which displayed an Indian riding a bear. Hustling for the necessary funds, the Class of '72 sponsored car washes, bake sales, and the Junior Class Talent Show. Through these projects, over $320 was earned for the Ring Dance held April 24, 1971.

When the big day arrived, juniors stood in line to receive long awaited rings. The Ring Dance found juniors dancing to music of Charlie McClendon and the Magnificents. Breaking tradition, juniors held the dance at Rodof Sholom Temple.

Exhausted after completing STEP and SCAT tests, Richard Homa recuperates with a brief nap. Supporting her class during the spirit jug competition, Barbara Wilson contributes her enthusiasm to the Junior Class.

72 Rules! 72 Rules! Showing the spirit of the Junior Class, Randy Colthorpe, Mike Goodwin and Anne Meade participate in one of the evening pep rallies.

Establishing themselves as active members of the student body, the Class of '73 received a third place trophy for their float in the 1970 Homecoming parade. Later in the year the sophomores captured "Ye Olde Spirit Jug" from both the junior and senior classes.

January discovered the sophomores selling doughnuts to raise the funds needed to sponsor Sophomore Fun Night. This event featured a dance preceded by a faculty basketball game. Participating teams were composed of women teachers from KHS as well as teachers from surrounding junior highs.

Selling class pins in the spring enabled the sophomores to add $25 to their treasury.

With their sponsors, Mrs. Yetta Greene and Mrs. Lynda Hooper, the sophomores began preparation for their next two years at KHS.

Staff sparks KHS activity

Helping students with outside problems, initiating new and stimulating courses, devoting free periods to work in attendance offices, and sponsoring clubs were some of the ways faculty members emphasized their commitment to KHS.

Accentuating community involvement, principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. announced his candidancy for City Council in the spring.

Personal involvement of faculty members generated change for Kecoughtan's betterment, alleviating the tendency for school to seem monotonous and meaningless.

Exam exemption instituted

Prodded by Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Garland Lively, the School Board decided to exempt seniors with an A or B average from final examinations.

Working towards vital improvements in the school system, the School Board encouraged development of summer programs for gifted students. Greater emphasis was placed on availability of reading teachers in high schools and expansion of vocational opportunities for students.

School Board improvements took concrete form in the finalizing of plans for the new Phoebus High School. To combine school curriculum with recreational activity, planners included designs for an indoor swimming pool.

In order to create a better functioning school system, the School Board proposed, for the future, a full school year on a rotating basis. Jobs would be available to students on this basis. School Board members felt the new plan would aid all students and would provide a better use of the school building.

Listening to a school board debate, Mr. Thomas Thompson reflects on the discussion. Speaking at recognition ceremonies for NJROTC, Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Garland Lively, commends recipients of the awards.

Dyche faces modern age

In an age of mounting pressures in the educational arena, the demand for relevancy of subject material has forced each principal to face squarely his own peculiar situation.

To meet these demands, Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. initiated plans for the addition of three new wings to Kecoughtan. Necessitated by the need for extra space, the wings were designed to increase a student's mobility in the classroom.

New curricula, such as the American Studies program to be instituted during the 1971-1972 school year, were conceived by Mr. Dyche as a means of maximizing the potential of the additions.

Always encouraging his staff to become involved in the total spectrum of the school and community, Mr. Dyche led the way by winning a seat on the Hampton City Council in the spring. In so doing, he beckoned each student, teacher, and administrator to become involved in the problems of our modern complex society.

Announcing his candidacy for Hampton City Council, Mr. Harry B. Dyche, Jr. presents his campaign platform. Surrounded by teachers and refreshments, Mr. Harry B. Dyche, Jr. reaches for a cookie.

KHS administration settles problems of faculty, pupils

Trying to please the Hampton School Board, parents, staff, and students, administrators kept tabs on activity within the school. When a conflict arose, they soothed feelings and solved the problem.

Evaluating and observing teachers, Mr. Fletcher Gray hoped to make each teacher more aware of his own potential.

When KHS teachers were down with the flu or colds, Mr. Walter Jones found substitute teachers to fill the positions. Overseeing the work of the custodial staff, Mr. Jones worked to improve the overall appearance of Kecoughtan.

As Dean of Boys, Mr. William Greene took care of attendance, discipline, and boys' problems. Placing students in jobs and working with homebound instruction were the jobs of Mrs. Shirley Booth, dean of girls. She also kept the records of girls' attendance and tardies.

Keystone cop Mr. William Greene serves as Dean of Boys when not cutting up in Faculty Frolics. Discussing an upcoming program, Mr. Walter Jones and Mr. Fletcher Gray consider what period to have the planned assembly program.

Administrators: Mr. Walter Jones, Mrs. Shirley Booth, Mr. William Greene, Mr. Fletcher Gray.

While readying the school for the winter session, Mrs. Beatrice Grimmer takes a luncheon break. Participating in the summer cafeteria workshop, a cafeteria worker from another Hampton school passes Mrs. Grimmer her filled plate.

Xerox copier assists staff

Ringing phones and the steady buzz of the new Xerox machine characterized the chaotic activity of Kecoughtan's office.

Receiving visitors, students, and teachers, Mrs. Beatrice Grimmer performed her duties as secretary to Principal Harry B. Dyche, Jr. In addition, she maintained Mr. Dyche's appointment and conference calendar. Processing of IBM material, such as grades and report cards, completed Mrs. Grimmer's job.

As office receptionist, Mrs. Betsy Storey answered the phone and prepared the teacher payroll. Ordering and selling supplies in the bookstore, Mrs. Mildred Insley also kept accurate accounts of school funds.

Secretaries: Mrs. Betsy Storey, Mrs. Gladys Hardrath, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Mrs. Beatrice Grimmer.

Schedule aid betters KHS

Plagued by the first hectic week, the Guidance Department aided in settling the confused sophomores and dissatisfied upperclassmen. Led by Mrs. Jane Price, the counselors aimed to assist the KHS student body.

In addition to heading the department, Mrs. Price joined a new counselor, Mrs. Judythe Niles, in advising the sophomores. Juniors were urged to consult Mrs. Evelyn Moore who was always willing to assist them.

College choices and job openings were the concern of seniors who found Mr. Arnold Ritt and Mrs. Minnie Bembry available. The counselors aided seniors in interpreting their SAT scores.

As well as keeping scholastic records, Mrs. Gladys Hardrath, helped by student assistants, prepared senior college transcripts.

Computing and recording the teacher classroom load occupies the time of counselor, Mrs. Jane Price. Totalling credits a student has achieved requires Mrs. Evelyn Moore to turn to her files and her permanent record cards.

Library expands materials; supplements with art work

In association with the school board, the Metropolitan Museum of Art lent "Art of Black Africa" and "Rembrandt" to the KHS library. Expansion of the Kecoughtan library with over 1,000 new books and resource materials necessitated cataloging and shelving for head librarian, Miss Nancy Spain.

Helping to keep the regular library routine functioning, Mrs. Jacqueline Carter aided students with researching term papers and dispersing audio-visual equipment. Keeping the library quiet and checking lunch students for passes increased Mrs. Carter's duties as assistant librarian.

Mrs. Mary Johnson assisted students looking for publications and resource materials. As library secretary, she completed all forms necessary for operating the library.

To acquaint sophomores with the utilization of the library, early fall classes instructed them in the use of the card catalogue and specialized references.

Clean-up. Miss Nancy Spain, librarian, sweeps the courtyard while Steve Ballard helps. Alphabetizing catalogue cards, Mrs. Mary Johnson processes library books.

Black Experience recounts Afro-American progression

Filmstrips, records, and speakers on African heritage and the contemporary Blackman supplemented the new Black Experience class. Negro contributions to history and literature were taught by Mrs. Evelyn Dawkins and Miss Donna L. O'Malley, in the only course of its type in Hampton.

Comprehension and reading skills were taught by Mrs. Shirley Wingfield in remedial reading classes. Classes were designed to promote faster and more comprehensive reading.

English classes were on four individual levels. College-prep classes emphasized composition while courses on regular levels concentrated upon developing clear, concise, and effective written communications.

Accompanied by guitars, Jane Andrews reads a ballad during Mrs. Jane Wetzel's English class. Shocked by the photographer, Mr. Victor Taylor hesitates in reaching for his attendance cards.

Contemplating the prejudices of a White America, Chris Thurber reconsiders her own viewpoints in Black Experience class.

New drama course applies stage crew, set knowledge

Speech, drama, and journalism classes revealed new aspects of our language to interested students.

Speech classes encouraged students to overcome tensions of speaking before groups. During the year they wrote and presented informative and demonstrative speeches.

After lectures by Mr. Thomas I. Miller, Drama I students built models of theaters and produced scenes from Greek and Shakespearean tragedies.

New techniques of sensitivity training that completely relaxed the body and released emotions were employed by Drama II students.

Drama IIT taught the practical application of stage crew skills. Students covered set construction and history of scene design.

Journalism I classes were supplemented with lectures by Joyce Merrit, education reporter for the Times-Herald, and Robert J. Cooke, professor of journalism at Hampton Institute. Both related the possibilities of a journalistic career.

Students in Journalism II published Tribal Tales, the school newspaper. Throughout the year, the staff wrote stories, conducted polls, sold ads, and met deadlines to issue the newspaper.

Learning new techniques of sensitivity training, Drama II students, Pam Lambert, Ray Williamson, and Connie Mitchell, experiment with diversified exercises.

Conspiring, Barbara Boone, Bev Simmons, Teri Hale, and Karen Roberts illustrate dramatic skills in a wedding skit. Expanding the journalism curriculum, Mrs. Joyce Merrit, education reporter for the Times Herald, gives a speech discussing journalism as a possible career to journalism students. Cracking an egg, Dave Farrar, senior, prepares French toast in a demonstrative speech.

Front Row: Mrs. Virginia Hess, Mrs. Judith Williamson, Miss Carolyn Davis, Mrs. Yetta Greene. Second Row: Miss Tyla Matteson, Mr. Uwe Haendler, Mr. William Still, Mrs. Nan Jordan.

Coordinating efforts, Mrs. Judith Williamson and Mr. Thomas Miller shelve books in the language office. With the teacher's guide in hand, Mrs. Virginia Hess checks an answer to a quiz.

Movies, filmstrips highlight people of foreign countries

Throughout the year, foreign language classes strove towards a goal of enriching students' knowledge of foreign cultures.

Utilizing the Britannica method, French and Spanish classes combined culture movies and filmstrips with the ALM program. In German correct pronunciation was reinforced through the use of colloquial dialogues and language tapes. Latin students studied Latin politics, society, and English derivations from Latin words.

Singing native carols and performing skits in foreign languages, students from all classes presented the annual Christmas assembly.

Language Week was publicized by language clubs with show case displays. Each club obtained items from their countries to familiarize the student body with the foreign country.

In conjunction with Language Week, city-sponsored foreign exchange students met with Kecoughtan students for discussions.

Practicing German folk songs, Judy Holbert and Paul Pishko prepare for a meeting with foreign exchange students during Language Week. Introducing a new Spanish dialogue, Miss Carolyn Davis waits for class repetition. Reading aloud an adventure from Don Quixote, Russell Norris expands the class' cultural knowledge.

Depicting contemporary American life, a collage creates contrast during the mock election of 1800. Beginning a tour of Wetherburn Tavern, Verbena Askew and Joanne Estes learn interesting aspects of the tavernkeeper and his inn. Contemplating the new use of voting machines in SCA elections, Mrs. Lois Handy watches as her government students vote.

Trips benefit pupils' study

New non-verbal experiments in learning afforded an extension of classroom reading, an individual discovery of early history, and insight into a more comprehensive study of American history.

Trips to Williamsburg to explore Wetherburn taverns gave Mrs. Nancy Reynolds' students a chance to gain a first hand view of past colonial life. Prior to the field trip, students spent a week examining original documents and portions of a masters' thesis on colonial taverns. Along with taverns, Miss Dorothy Farinholt's students viewed the musical play 1776, the story of the United States gaining independence.

In January, twenty KHS students attended a Student Burgess Congress held in Williamsburg. They heard youth from around the world discuss the problems and advantages of student unrest.

Listening to a guide describe tavern furniture, John Fischgrund decides to relax in a colonial chair. Studying a thesis paper on colonial taverns, Miss Gerry Farinholt points out specific architectural details to junior Acquanetta Frazier.

Trips, voting stir students

Mock elections, a Washington trip, and use of voting machines enabled government classes to observe the functioning of a democratic society.

Election spirit captured the school as Mr. Revis Conrad's and Mr. David Dwyer's classes staged a mock election. Candidates of the fictitious Ripplecrat and Bacardi parties delivered speeches and party platforms. Tempers flared as heated debates over controversial issues such as martini water fountains took place during classes and lunches. After a week of active campaigning, students headed for the polls to vote for their party choice.

Along the same political lines, Mrs. Lois Handy's advanced government class spent a day touring Washington, D.C. Sites visited included the White House, Department of Justice, Bureau of Printing and Engraving, Smithsonian Institute, and the Sam Rayburn building. Students also spent time in the House of Representatives at the Capitol listening to discussions on the draft and the status of conscientious objectors.

Enlivening the history game simulation, Beth Rowe assumes the role of a helpless little old lady in Mrs. Reynold's U. S. history course. Making use of the five minute class change, Mr. Jim Hathaway and Mr. Steve Hochman hold a conference.

Addressing the faculty meeting, Mr. Don Taylor expresses his point of view on faculty discussion. Ripplecrat Quigley campaigns for the Ripplecrat-Baccardi party elections. Breaking the routine of classroom teaching, Mrs. Neilson relaxes in the cafeteria during lunchtime.

Making a linoleum block, art student Jim Miller prepares a nameplate for printing. Pressing her dress, Betsy Merritt irons out the garment's curves on the pressing ham. Practicing songs for a future concert, Mrs. Lucile Sutterer rehearses with the Boys' Chorus.

Students find enrichments through fine art curriculum

Enriched through the fine arts curriculum, students acquired knowledge of the humanities and culture.

Involvement in the home was the basis for the home economic course taught by Mrs. Linda Hamlin and Miss Sue Smith. Incorporating the knowledge needed by the modern woman, girls studied the intricacies of nutrition, cooking, and sewing. Practicing their newly developed skills, girls gave buffets for faculty and parents.

Focusing on art shows and art techniques occupied Miss Cheryl Meidinger's art students. In coordination with the DE Club, the art department opened a craft store with students' works for sale.

Under the direction of Mrs. Lucile Sutterer and Mr. Fred Pendergraft, the choirs and bands entertained at programs and assemblies. Making students aware of different music styles was the main objective of music appreciation taught by Mrs. Sutterer.

Introducing students to the vast cultural environment, the MADS course presented aspects of art. Comprised of five teachers, the course integrated and blended ideas, while erasing boundary lines between areas.

Fine Arts Department: Miss Sue Smith, Miss Cheryl Meidinger, Mr. Fred Pendergraft, Mrs. Linda Hamlin, Mrs. Lucile Sutterer.

Directing the band, Mr. Fred Pendergraft prepares to practice a new piece of music. Working on a dress for class assignment, Joan Fuller rips out a seam.

New subjects instill interest

To aid college bound students in effective note taking, notehand, a varied form of shorthand, was added to the business curriculum. Offered in conjunction with a semester course in personal typing, notehand enabled students to take notes effectively.

Working to prepare students for a business career or college, the department also offered general business, typing, shorthand, record keeping and distributive education.

Qualified seniors possessing employable office skills were given the opportunity to put their business and office training to practice when they were involved in cooperative work experience with local business firms.

Preparation for employment and on-the-job training in distributive retailing and marketing were offered in distributive education, a three year course.

Concentrating, Janice Reamy takes notes in Mrs. Shrout's office practice class. Erasing a typing error, Mary Hart tries to perfect her business letter.

Typing an envelope, Mary Fogg concentrates on the correct form. Working on six weeks' grades, Mrs. Cindy Allen tabulates her students' averages on the adding machine.

Business Department—Front Row: Mrs. Joan South, Mr. Ira Warner, Mrs. Judith McPherson, Mrs. Cynthia Allen. Second Row: Mrs. Elizabeth Austen, Mrs. Barbara Farmer, Mrs. Nancy Shrout, Mrs. Jane Rogers.

Completing a woodshop project, Shawn Nystrom carefully cuts a piece of wood on the band saw. Reaching for a match, Mr. James Wright relaxes between classes. Working on a class assignment, Asa Jenrette completes a sketch.

Skills acquired by students

Learning the fundamentals of mechanical machinery and tools, industrial arts students acquired new skills in metal work, carpentry, and mechanical drawing. By constructing projects, students learned to use and appreciate a variety of tools and machinery. They further increased their knowledge by working in a foundry.

Under department head Harvey Grady industrial arts teachers helped students relate newly-acquired skills to possible future job opportunities. Drafting students developed their technical imagination by studying the needs and requirements and design techniques for houses and public buildings.

Biology students compete in statewide fair exhibition

Contributing to the accomplishments of the science department, three physiology students, seniors Jane Nelson, Ardys DeBolt, and Nancy Jo Dunn, attended a state convention in Blacksburg sponsored by the Virginia Academy of Science. Virginia Polytechnic Institute was the site of the convention. The girls received an honorable mention in the competition for their experimentation concerning the effects of centrifugal force on mice.

Important aspects of the physical, biological, and chemical sciences were taught to enrich and prepare the students' pursuit of further study in science. Continued this year was the Biological Sciences Study Curriculum which enabled students with weak scientific backgrounds to gain more study experience. Departmental chairman, Mrs. Debra Hudnall, taught the Chem Study course which placed emphasis on the broad concepts of chemistry.

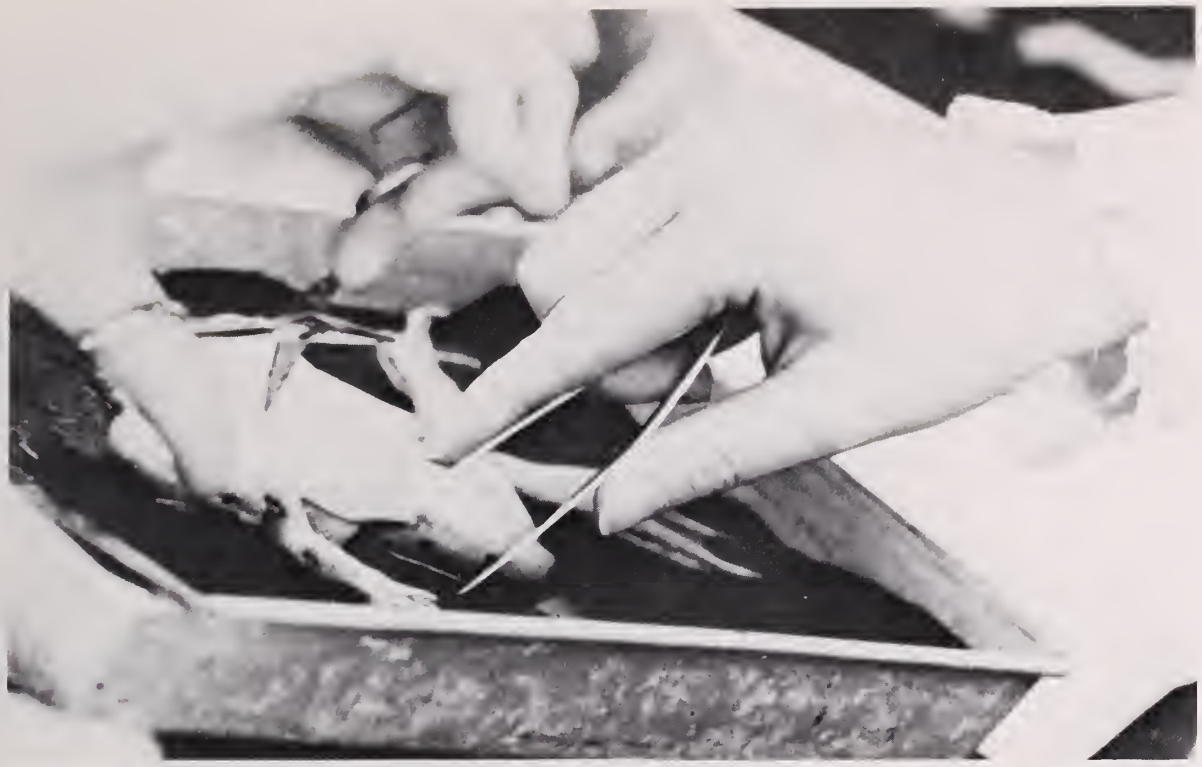
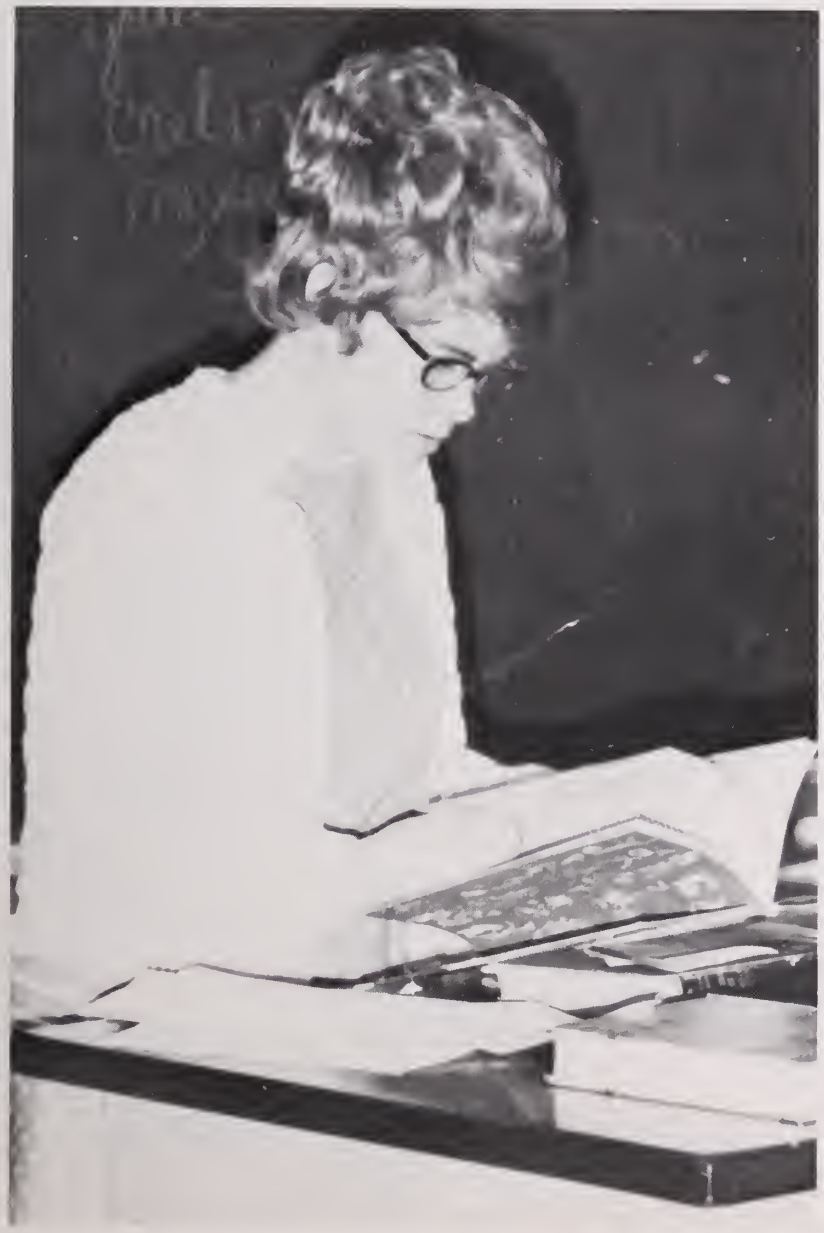
After presentation of her physiology term paper on hypnotism, Marty Moll answers pertinent questions from the class. Working on a chemistry experiment to generate oxygen, Doug Beason and Verbena Askew set up the equipment needed to begin the process.





Probing the fatty tissue, two biology students prepare to examine the entrails of frog. Using a book for reference, Mrs. Mary O'Neill, biology teacher, explains the role of chlorophyll in green plants to her students. Making her point, Mrs. Linda Rice, physiology teacher, explains hormones to the class as Julie Haines listens.

Taking time in class, James Spencer and Robert Leach concentrate on homework. Buring some paper, Mrs. Betsy Storey takes time to talk to Mr. Robert Cronau. Listening to a question, Mrs. Ruth Edwards pauses in algebra class.

Computer class developed to update math curriculum

Highlighting programs offered by the math department, the first computer math course was initiated by the school to develop a broader interest in mathematics. Taught by Mr. Ronald Murray, the course discussed the languages, programming, and implementation of the APL 360 computer, an IBM product. Use of the computer provided students' help in solving problems ranging from complex calculus and physics concepts to simple algebraic equations.

Classroom teachers were again aided by television instructors in the courses of probability and statistics, matrix algebra, and advanced calculus.

Other courses offered by the department ranged from general math and consumer math to algebra, geometry, and math analysis.

Headed by Mrs. Charlotte Remaley, the math department sought to interest students in the many phases of mathematics. New courses and new methods of instruction caught the attention of KHS students.

Examining math problems, Mr. Robert Mann prepares a homework assignment for his class. Writing his computer program, Paul Ledbetter translates a complex mathematical equation.

Stretching to return a volley, Patricia Freeman competes in a game of volleyball in her gym class. Assisted by Mr. Steve Hochman, Mr. William Greene discusses plans for the new girls' gym.

Athletic department heads planning for new girls' gym

Anticipating driving conditions, behind-the-wheel-students utilized the new driving simulator. Students were eligible to take behind-the-wheel training after successfully completing the classroom course and obtaining their learner's permit.

Headed by William Greene, the department initiated plans for a new girls' gym to be ready for use in 1971-72. In the present facilities students enhanced their skills in such sports as wrestling, tennis, and volleyball.

Courses in driver training, first aid, and an introduction to popular sports of America were offered to broaden students' interests.

Naval Base, nuclear carrier visited by NJROTC cadets

Marksmanship and the spirit of competition were added to the life of NJROTC cadets by a newly-formed rifle team. Petty Officer Max Brantley headed the team which practiced at Fort Monroe in preparation for competition with other schools.

Fieldtrips to the nuclear aircraft carrier and the Norfolk Naval Base offered the cadets a first-hand look at the operation of modern naval vessels.

In the classroom Commander Edmund Stronski instructed the cadets in academic fields such as naval history, meteorology, and oceanography. Such military aspects as precision marching and leadership were taught by CWO Arthur Spriggs to acquaint students with naval life.

Different uniforms worn by cadets are demonstrated by John Crenshaw and Keith Midgette at "Back to School Night." Working with Bill Seals, Commander Edmund Stronski considers a recommendation.

Lowering the flag at the end of a school day, Ken Sullivan and Ron Slaughter perform one of the duties designed for NJROTC cadets. Leaning back in his chair, CWO Arthur Spriggs listens to a question from one of his students.

Pre-school workshop week sponsored by kitchen crew

August 16, 1970, found Kecoughtan's nineteen cafeteria workers back at school for a five day workshop. First year workers were introduced to the cafeteria and new equipment while they tested new recipes.

Under their head, Mrs. Ruby Wilkerson, the staff followed a nation-wide menu during National School Lunch Week by serving a chicken dinner at the end of the week. The staff, with the help of art students, made posters to encourage students to purchase a lunch.

Assisted by Mrs. Mable Crump, Hobart Sales and Service manager Robert Doody demonstrates a new ice crusher. Cleaning up after lunch, Mrs. Laura Garris washes a dish tray. Stirring a batch of bread dough, Mrs. Ruby Wilkerson helps prepare a portion of a day's meal.

Janitors help scour school

Replacing lightbulbs, cleaning floors, moving tables, and washing towels were just a few of the jobs that the custodial staff had to perform. Working under their head, Melvin Smith, the staff worked after school and on weekends cleaning classrooms and cleaning up after banquets and dances.

Working after school, Mr. Joseph Johnson sweeps trash from the halls. Preparing for the arrival of another gym class, Mrs. Viola Wilson folds a freshly cleaned towel.

Business life prods youth

Helping Warriors taste the working man's reality and leading them on the path to tomorrow's destination, the business community offered new and challenging experiences for Kecoughtan students.

Keeping the economic phases of the community from stagnating, interested establishments benefited from working students' fresh ideas and approaches.

While financial aid in advertising made school publications and many programs possible, student buying power propelled the expansion of local business.

NEWPORT NEWS. WE'VE LAUNCHED MORE THAN 500 SHIPS.

But wait 'til you see our encore. When we started out in 1886, we were just a small ship repair yard. We named the company Newport News. Because we were proud to be doing business here.

Today we're the largest shipyard in the world. And we're still proud to call ourselves Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company. Because a lot of the people who helped put us where we are today come from right here on the Virginia Peninsula.

With their help, Newport News has become an important asset to our community, our state and our nation.

Sure, launching over 500 ships in a little more than 80 years is a pretty impressive achievement. But we're not standing still for that. We're constantly looking to the future.

And since our acquisition by Tenneco Inc. we've got an even greater encore lined up for our employees and the community.

Tomahawk

Using offset lithography, Inter-Collegiate Press of Shawnee Mission, Kansas, assisted by consultant Mr. Terry Gilson of Richmond, Virginia, published the 1971 Tomahawk.

Cover design by Cathy Crow was special embossed with two silk screen colors applied to embossed areas.

All type in the 1971 Tomahawk was Trade Gothic Extended with point sizes as follows: body copy, 10 point with 2 point leading; captions, 8 point with 2 point leading; identifications, 6 point set solid; headlines, 24 point bold face.

Credits

Without the help of many, the production of the 1971 Tomahawk would have been impossible.

Professional photographer Mr. Sparky Sanders of School Pictures, Incorporated provided class pictures, senior portraits, and club photographs. Mr. Jim Saine of Max Ward-Delmar Studios also provided club pictures.

Special credit is given to Mike Tolliver, a UVA student, who trained the photographers and provided some of the action pictures for the 1971 Tomahawk.

Local scenery offers a relaxing moment to the students. Framed by the door's panel, senior CeCe King erases a typing error.

Arm in arm, Sherry Skinner and Vern Williams stroll down the beach. As one looks up into a maze of tree branches, he considers the path of his future. Alone on a beach strewn with pebbles and seaweed, Mike Brennand pauses to reflect his memories of the past and to ponder his dreams of the future.

Future holds vast dreams

As tomorrows creep into yesterdays, futures blend into a maze of anonymity. Reaching out, individuals seek to make a niche for themselves in a competitive society. Facing the dilemmas of modern man, students leave with great hopes and many questions. As a couple strolls arm in arm down the beach or as a pensive youth searches for his unique aptitudes, the future becomes today. But through individual and group commitments, the young can help the world reap the promise of tomorrow.
